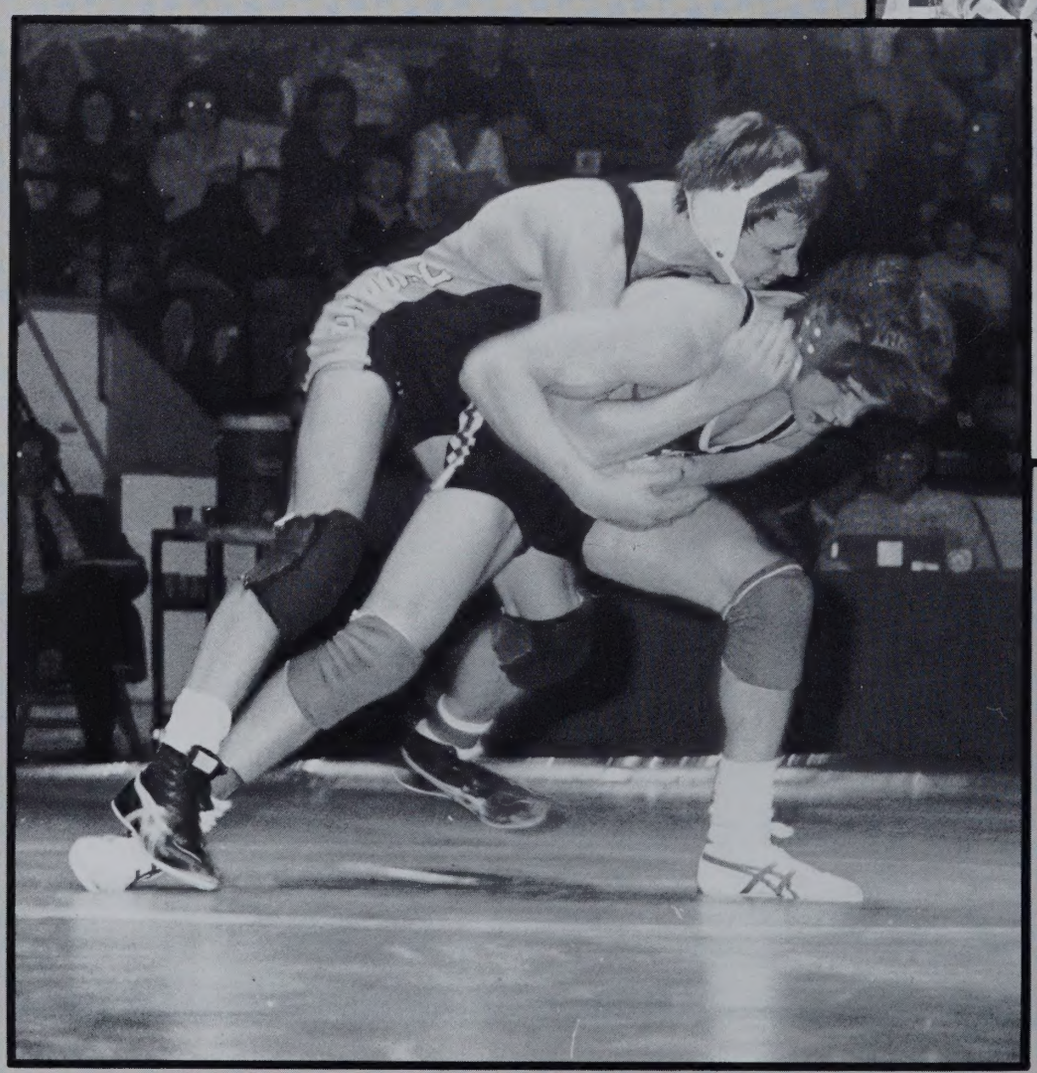
LIVE IT UP!

Dan Brook, below, really "lived it up" after defeating Jasper's Todd Kersteins 6-5 with a reversal just before the state championship match ended. (Evening Star photo)



Despite the offensive efforts of senior Shelley Meyer, carrying the ball, the juniors won the homecoming powder puff game 24-12.

Do Barons know how to "Live It Up?" When school started on August 26 after a very hot summer, most of us were unwilling to spend time in the classroom instead of the swimming pool.

For seniors this was the last step before getting into the real world; for juniors it meant one more step until they reached the top; and for sophomores, it meant a big unknown building and new friends and teachers.

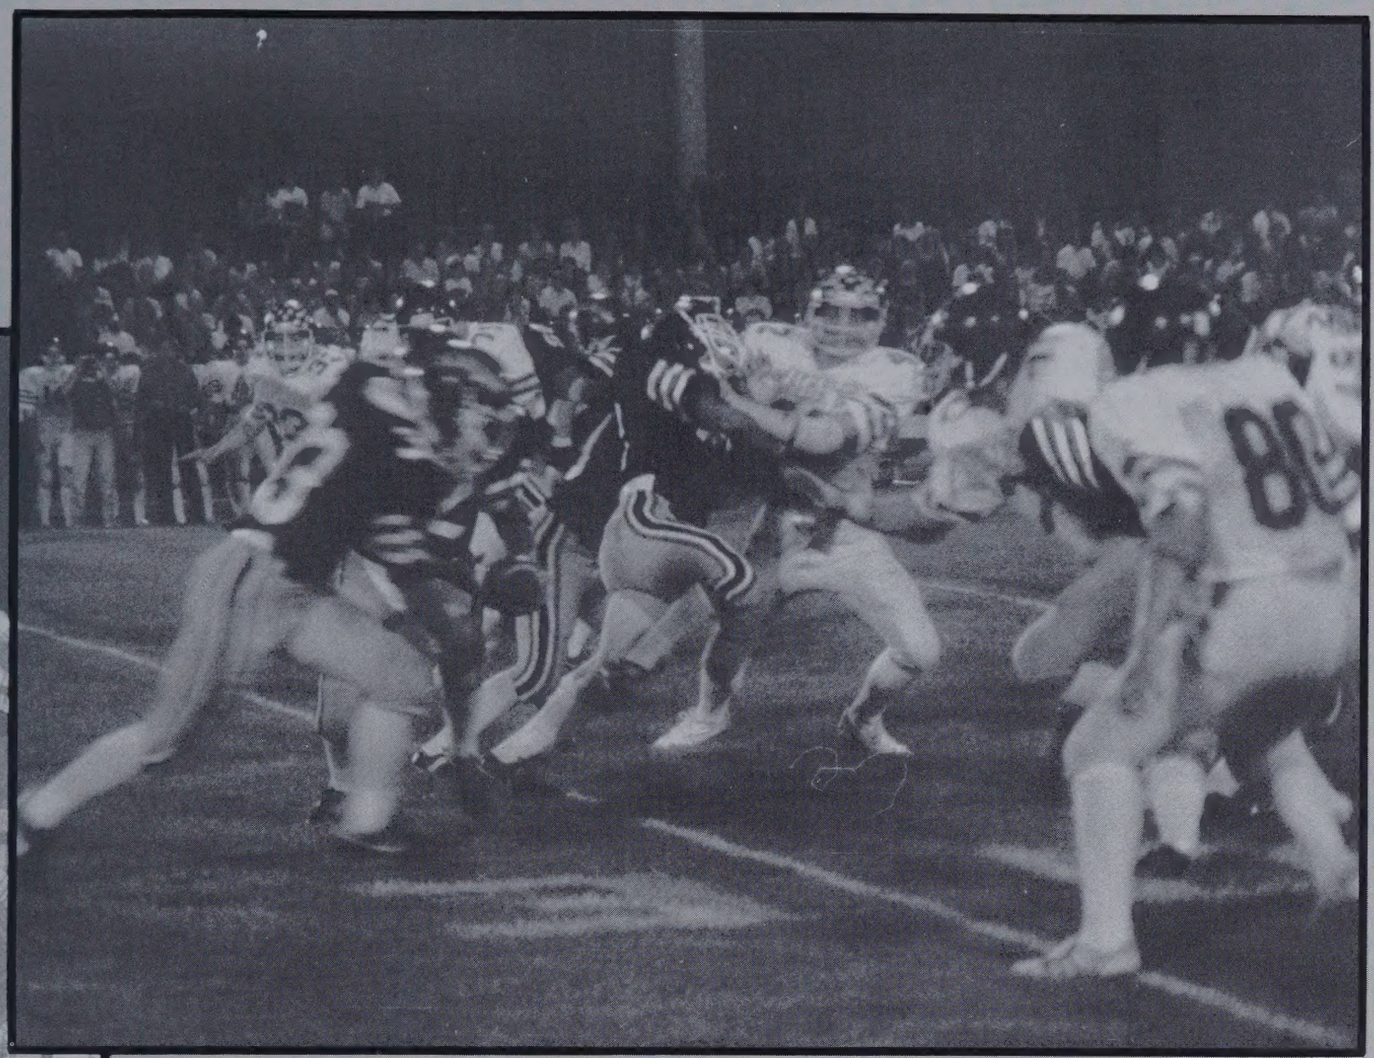
With football, cross country, and band, the students were hoping for a great year. Especially good years were had by girls basketball and wrestler Dan Brook — undefeated seasons! And there were pep sessions for all our teams — even the speech team, which also had an outstanding year.

Through it all — dances, exams, concerts, jobs after school, seeing our friends in the halls — we seldom missed a chance to have some fun.

We hope that reading this book will show that we do know how to "Live It Up" in Baron Country.

Mr. Gerry Nagel seems to be enjoying himself as he adds the years to Marla McKown for her portrayal of Ethel in "On Golden Pond."

Before each volleyball match, the girls performed this formation for spirit. It helped them go all the way to the regional final game.



Taking the handoff, Kevin Klein prepares to follow his blockers for a long gainer. Kevin was the first Baron ever to gain over 1,000 yards.

BARONS

LIVE IT UP

Kathryn Hepburn and Henry Fonda? Not exactly! It's DeKalb's own version, however, with Marla McKown and Bryan Nugen in On Golden Pond.

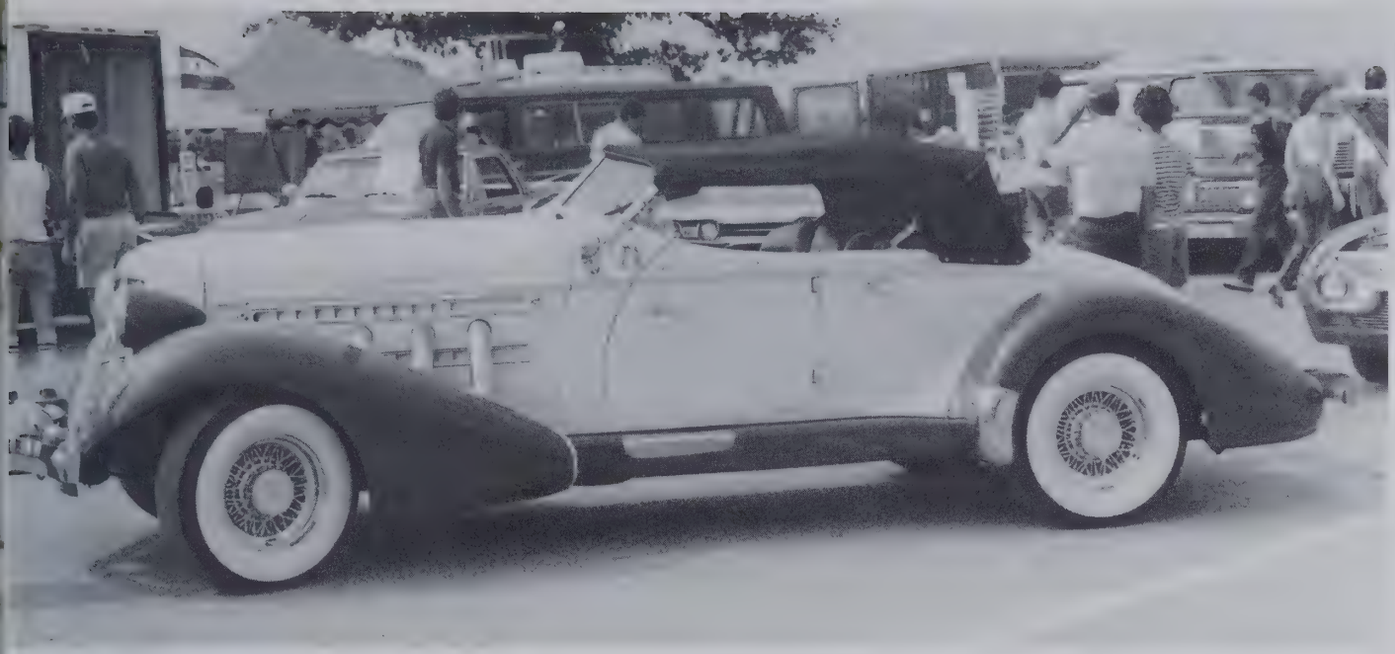
Transportation - Then & Now

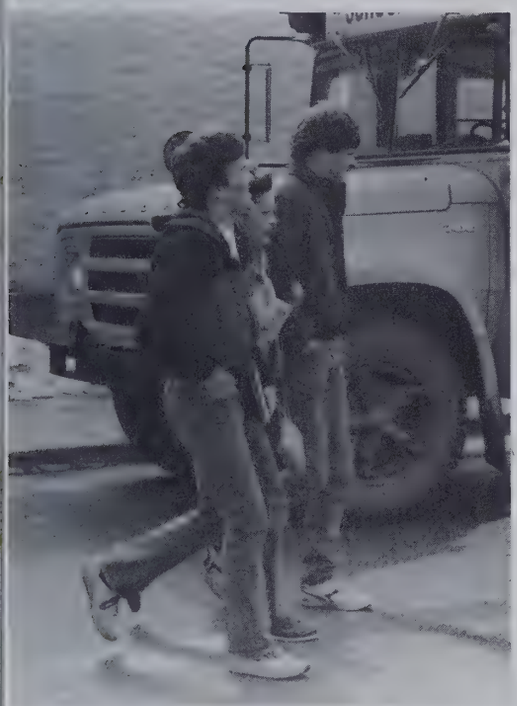
Every Labor Day weekend Barons have a unique opportunity to see first-hand just how transportation has changed since the "good old days." That's when the Auburn-Cord-Duesenberg festival and the car auction take over the school grounds and we can see all kinds of classic cars.

Some of our own cars are classics in a different sense of the word, but one thing they all have in common is transportation. We use them to get to school and wherever else we want to go. Many Barons owned their own gas guzzlers, but some had to persuade parents or friends to take us to school if we didn't want to be caught dead on the school bus.

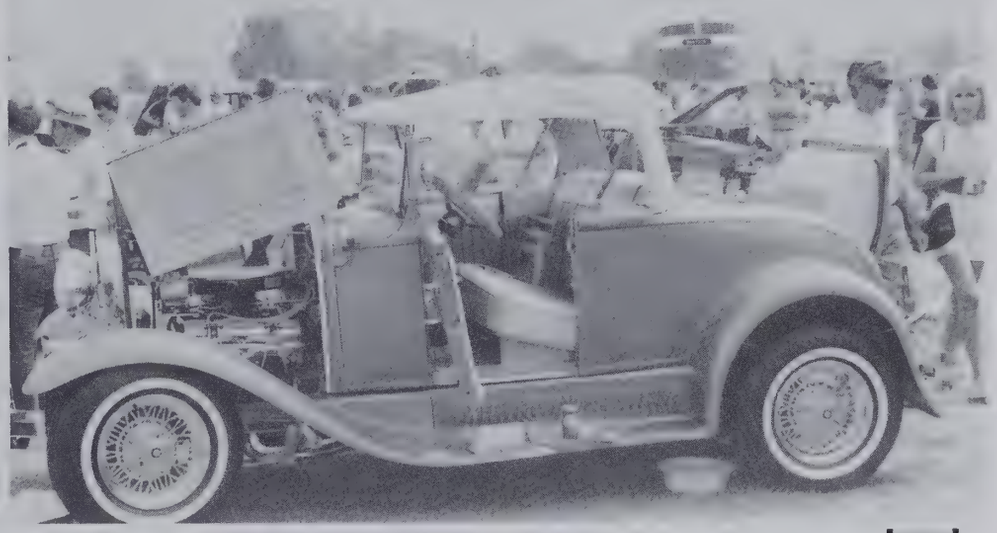
Whether you get to school on time by bus or car, Holly Haiflich shows us her transportation, right. Below is the Baron parking lot.



Selling for a list price of $2,245 when first introduced in the mid-30's, this Supercharged Auburn Speedster model 851 adds some class to our parking lot for ACD Days.



School's out and it is time to head for home as seniors A.J. Takacs, Marie Spratt and Robert Voelkel are eager to have some after-school fun, left.



This customized Model A Ford attracts a lot of attention from classic car lovers in attendance at the ACD auction over Labor Day weekend.

Juniors Lorri Waters, Chris Kobiela, and Shelly Nadeau rush to the school doors from the bus while sophomores Kathi Harper and Missy Stomm slowly walk behind.

Barons Live It Up at the Fair

DeKalb County Free Fall Fair participants generally enjoy the fair more when the weather is nice and hot, instead of being cold, rainy, and miserable and this year they weren't disappointed.

Nice comfortable weather allowed the Baron Brigade to Live It Up. They received a first place rating in the Class B division and took the sweepstakes award in Saturday's parade.

At the barns, participants received various placing in all types of events. Being crowned 4-H King and Queen were seniors Tom Orwig and Debbie Bowman.

Participanting for Fair Queen were Miss Auburn winner, Jill Hay and first runner-up, Jenny Grimm. Jill received the Miss Congeniality award and Jenny received first runner-up.

This year's performing group for the Mousehole was Arc. They consisted of 11 men and 2 women from all over the United States.

But for many, the midway was the "funest" part of the week. We got to see old friends and made some new, but it was mainly a time to enjoy ourselves with our friends.

Jenny Grimm gives her introduction speech which was part of her performance that allowed her to receive Fair Queen first runner-up.

After a hard day's work cleaning out their stalls in the 4-H barn, seniors Jerry Rinehart and Nick Stout take a break.

Mark Jarrett, Todd Barhydt, Fred Wessel, Gates Hoham toss dimes to see if they will be lucky enough to win some glasses.

4-H King and Queen Tom Orwig and Debbie Bowman have an honored place as they ride in the fair's Grand Finale parade.

Seniors Robin Pranger and Terri Presley enjoy an afternoon horseback ride in the area near the fairgrounds barns.

Junior Powder Puffers and cheerleaders show that they have just proven they are number one, at least when it comes to football against the senior girls. (top)

Juniors Win Powder Puff Game

The L.A. Raiders? No, not hardly. It's DeKalb's annual Powder Puff game. Shelley Meyer tries getting a pass off to another senior teammate.

Fall is always full of excitement, fun, and enthusiastic events. Homecoming here at DHS was one of the annual events where students lived it up DHS style. The activities started on Wednesday with the powder puff game. The junior girls defeated the seniors in a hard fought game with a final score of 24-12.

Wednesday was also declared rock T-shirt day followed by Hawaiian day on Thursday and red, white, and black day on Friday.

This year, students voted for a Homecoming queen and king. Queen candidates were Susan Miller, Tonya Baker, and Jenny Smith. Candidates for DeKalb's first king were Jeff Rekeweg, Dan Brook, and Jeff Seavers. Halftime was filled with anticipation until Tonya Baker and Dan Brook were announced as the reigning queen and king. Halftime was also the time for a parade full of floats and cars. Floats from the Spanish Club and German Club took first prize.

This year's attendants were sophomores Susan Ware and Todd Bishop, and juniors Micolea Jennings and Tyler Alexander.

DeKalb triumphed over Columbia City with a score of 48-19. After the game, a Victory/Homecoming dance was held in the commons and was sponsored by the senior class.

After Charlie, center, delivers the mail, he sits down with Norman and Ethel to discuss their old time memories and have some tea.

Darren McKown portrays Billy Ray as he picks up his fishing equipment for a full day of fishing with Norman, his new companion.

Marci Benbow tries to bring out the best in Scott Metzger as she applies make up to recreate Charlie for Friday night's performance.

Presenting: 'On Golden Pond'

It wasn't the movie version, it was DeKalb's very own fall play featuring "On Golden Pond" in the DHS auditorium on November 4 and 5.

Bryan Nugen starred as the leading man playing Norman Thayer and the leading lady, Marla McKown, played Norman's wife, Ethel Thayer. Other cast members included Kim Knauer as Chelsea Thayer, their daughter; Scott Johnson, as Bill Ray, Chelsea's boyfriend; Darren McKown as Billy Ray, his son; and Scott Metzger, as Charlie Martin the mailman.

"On Golden Pond" is a play that shows love between husband and wife and parents and children. The play, written by Ernest Thompson, all revolves around Norman and Ethel Thayer, who were portrayed very well during the whole play.

The director was Mr. Gerry Nagel and his assistant director was Janet Fee.

As the rest of the cast members stand by, Bryan Nugen prepares to take a bow after his excellent portrayal of Norman Thayer.

After first arriving at the Thayer cottage on Golden Pond, Bill Ray and Chelsea discuss Norman and his 80th birthday celebration.

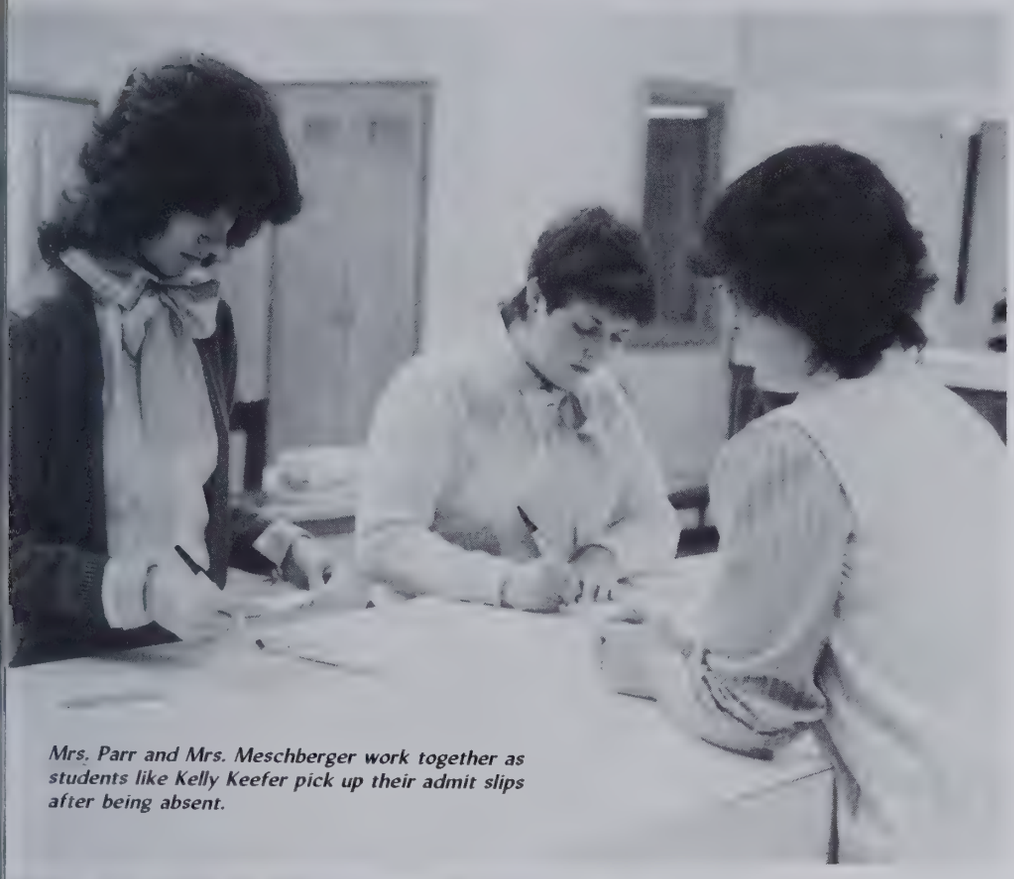
A typical classroom scene shows that students have various ways of listening to their teacher, in this case Mr. Murdock.

Jenny Brown has just finished her lunch. The candy store is often the next stop for some students before returning to class.

The benches in the lower hall are a favorite hang-out place for the guys before school so they can watch the girls go by.

What is it? (right) It's the one, the only senior hall, the pride and joy of the class of 1984!

A Typical Day at School



Mrs. Parr and Mrs. Meschberger work together as students like Kelly Keefer pick up their admit slips after being absent.

A day at school would be boring to most students without their friends. Classes sometimes seem to be a minor part of our day at school.

Mornings were spent catching up on the latest news and gossip or just sitting around watching people go up to their lockers.

Remember those always inspiring words given at the start of second hour announcements by fellow students. It just had a way of making us feel we're Barons (?)!

During homeroom you could find those students who can't remember where they were going or where they belong. Friends met and walked the hall or attended meetings. Some students used the time to do studying or make-up work.

Lunch would not be lunch without friends sitting around a table trying to make something good out of their meal.

When the afternoon classes were finally over, we headed for home or job or somewhere else and ended another typical day at DHS.

The senior guys get together in the commons each morning to talk about happenings from the day before — among other things.

Holiday Spirit Rings Through the Halls

The Barons had a fun Christmas this year. Christmas break started December 23 and students returned to school on January 3. Most Barons enjoyed their time away from homework and classes.

The Christmas Formal was a highlight of the holiday season. The band "Onyx" provided the entertainment.

A Christmas Carol was another holiday event. Scott Johnson played Scrooge and elementary students came and watched the play. The band and choir performed their annual Christmas concert for the student body.

The Superstars competition had a holiday ring this year. Teachers, students, and bus drivers from DeKalb Central schools participated in the Christmas Capers.

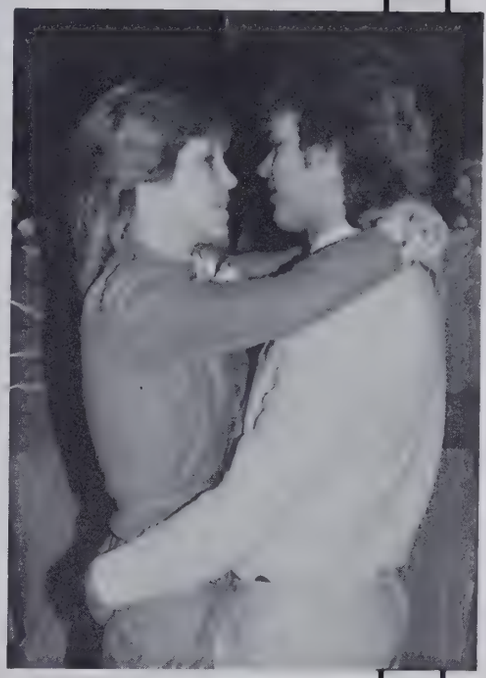
The Brigadiers performed their Christmas halftime show at the Eastside game. DHS was victorious and the Christmas spirit was clearly evident in the red and green school colors.

Debbie Ellert, Doreen Smith, and Lisa Carnahan are rehearsing for A Christmas Carol. The play was directed by Mr. Gerry Nagel.

The Cratchett family gets ready to have Christmas dinner in A Christmas Carol. Mr. Cratchett is played by Bryan Nugen.

Bryan Nugen is playing Santa Claus and Tammy Brooks and Tammy Barth are waiting for him in the Brigadier halftime show at the Eastside game.

Mandy Brown and Rick Mitchell seem to be having a good time at the Christmas Formal. The German Club hired "Onyx" to play for the dance.



Adina Winebrenner gets ready for the faculty Christmas dinner to be provided by the students in Mrs. Stomm's foods class.

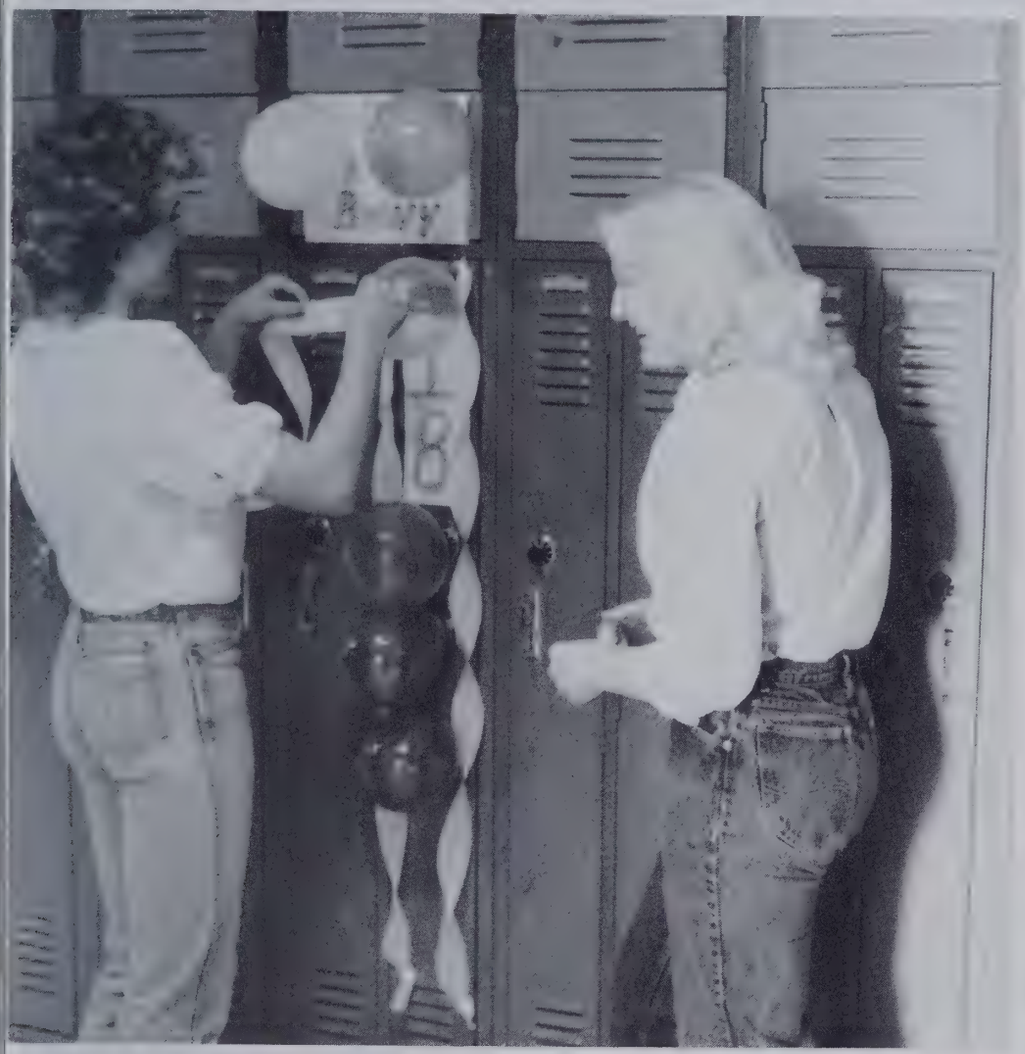
Jeff Rekeweg and Heather Charlesworth were voted the king and queen of the 1983 Christmas Formal by those attending the dance.

Massive skip-out??? Actually it's the normal hustle and bustle in the five minutes allowed between classes.

Looking high and low through all of their "junk," Marla McKown and Janet Fee may need extra time to find just what they need in their lockers.

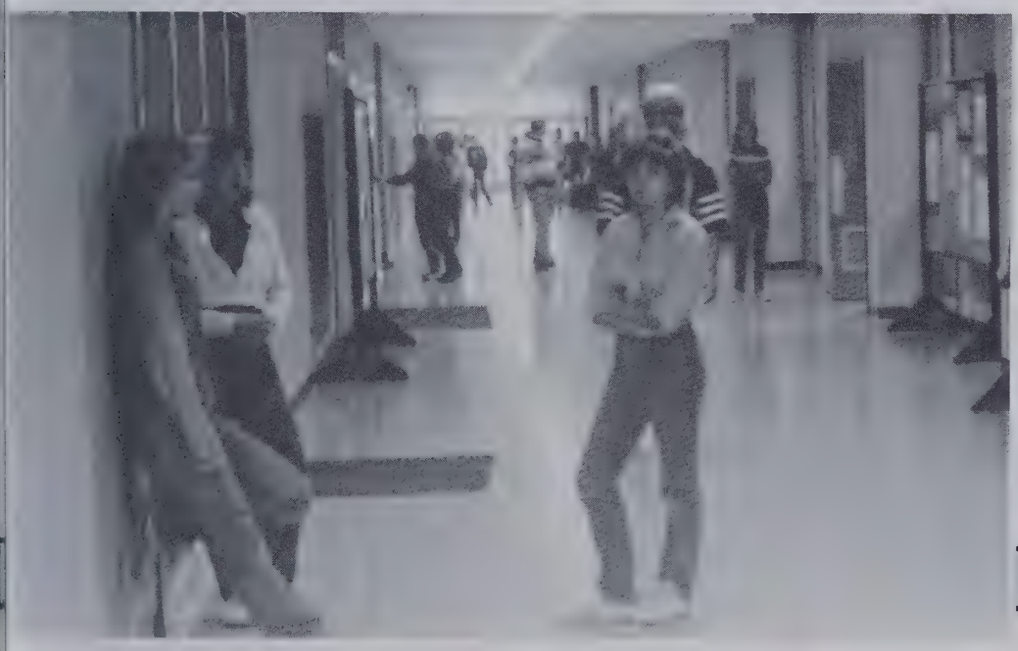
The camera catches Lorri Waters as she gets her books before rushing to her next class.

Lockers & Friends Go Together



Tami Brooks and Linda Myers are caught in the act of wishing a friend an unexpected "Happy Birthday" by adding locker decorations.

Karen Schrader, Audra Rader, and Leslie Whittington are caught by the camera at their usual place after eating lunch.



As the routine school day began, we went to our lockers and put away the homework that we took last night but probably never looked at and hang up our coats. As the day went on we saw that the lockers weren't just a place to store our belongings but were also a place to catch up on the latest with our friends.

Often times before a game we saw the players' lockers decorated to get them psyched up for the big event. Many lockers were personalized with pictures and small memorandums posted inside and out.

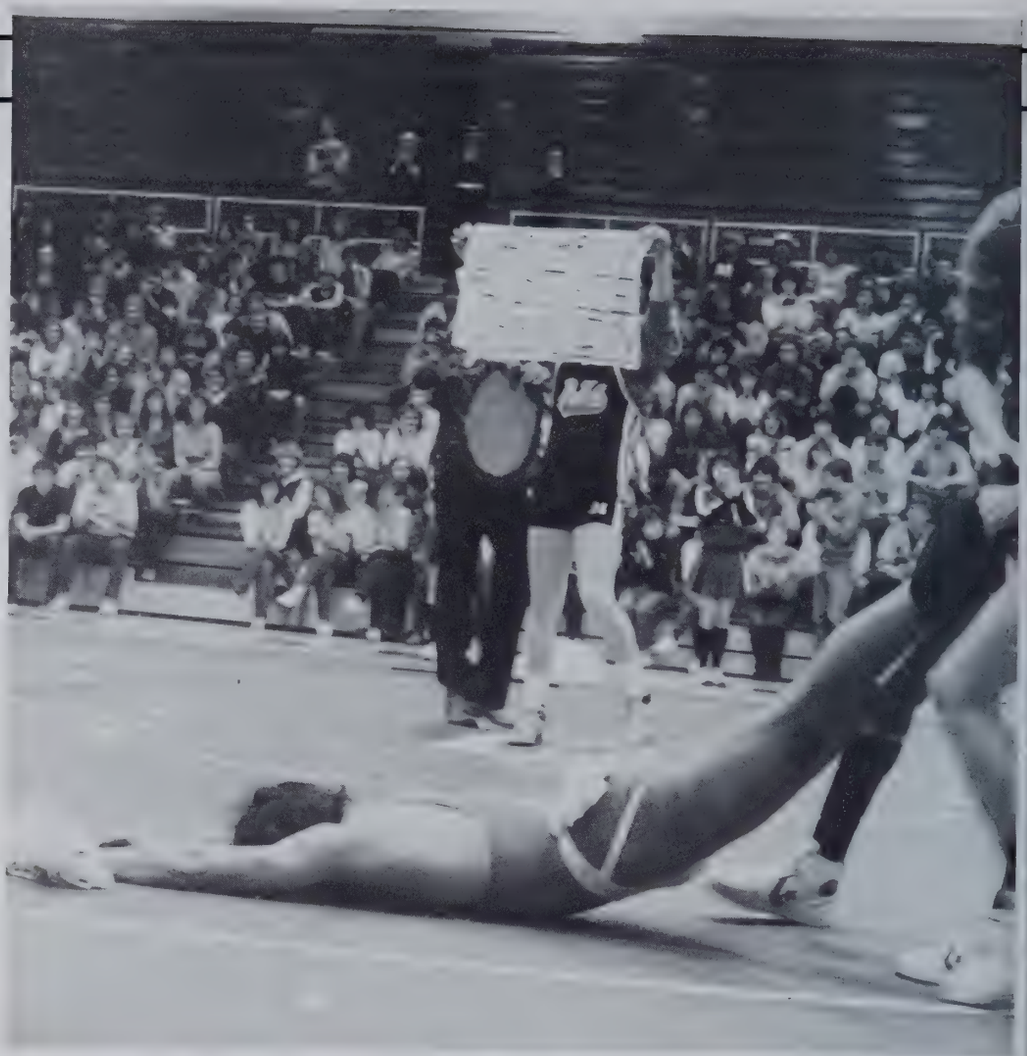
Lockers were a favorite meeting place in the mornings and in between classes. Friends were always found congested around the small area we could call our own for the school year. Friends often switched lockers with people just to be a little closer and more convenient.

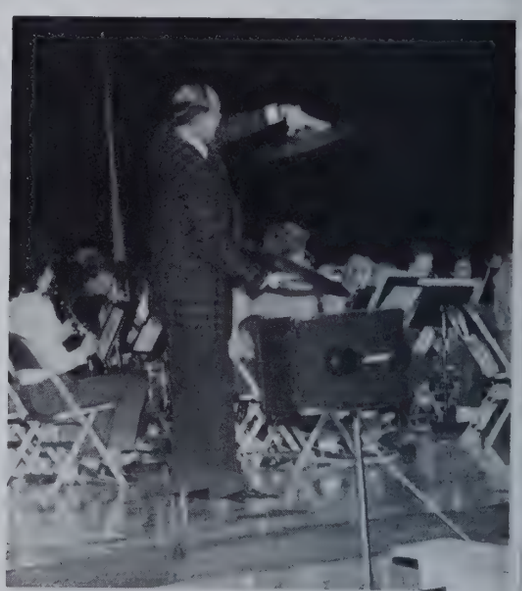
Throughout a normal day friends did more than just liven things up. They helped us through thick and thin and when we needed them, they were always there.

It's probably routine for Terry Purdy to wonder if his locker will open this time as he does his combination.

As Dave Cserep is pulled off the mat, the crowd cheers and Dave Brown holds up the sign that shows that Dan Brook is the real state champ.

Free Fare's lead singer gets down and jams with DeKalb's student body during a convocation sponsored by the Student Council.





When the signal is given, cymbalist-for-a-day Mr. Fites crashes his cymbals as the band plays "Here Comes Santa Claus" at the Christmas convo.

At fair time, Campus Life sponsors a group to perform for us. Left, a singer in "Arc" entertains some lucky students in the audience.

'The More We Get Together . . .

Periodically a group like Campus Life or the Student Council decided to give the students a break for part of the day and sponsor a convo or pep session. This year a variety of acts took the stage to entertain us.

Annually, Campus Life sponsors a group to perform for the student body as a preview to the entertainment performed at the Mousehole on midway at the fair. This year the group "Arc" entertained us with the latest in music.

At Christmas time, the band and choirs showed us what hard work and practice can do with their Christmas concert performed in the auditorium.

Pep sessions were held frequently throughout the year to cheer a team to victory or to congratulate a group for a job well done.

Through all the pep sessions and convos our school showed we do know how to Live It Up!

A pie in the face is what Sarah Pfefferkorn gets from Troy Albin as the crowd cheers the basketball team on to the sectional.

As a preview to a concert held at the school, the group "Free Fare" entertains the students at a convo held in the gym.

Is he taking part in an air guitar contest? No, it's just Eric van Straten's way of dancing at the Beach Party.

This rather sedate couple showed up to watch the Sadie Hawkins dance from the sidelines.

... The Happier We'll Be

Among the many couples enjoying themselves on the dance floor at the Sadie Hawkins dance are Debbie Webb and Mike Hathaway.

The students at DeKalb love to get down and jam at dances which are sponsored by various groups such as the Student Council, French Club, and German Club.

Sadie Hawkins is a traditional dance. The girls have to take the guys out and couples can get hitched at the "Hitchin' Booth." This year, Spectrum provided the tunes for Sadie Hawkins.

The Christmas Formal was one of the more popular dances of the year. Jeff Rekeweg and Heather Charlesworth were voted King and Queen at the dance. The featured tunes were by "Onyx."

The Sweetheart Dance, which was sponsored by the French Club, was held on the 25th of February. The music was provided by "Dux Deluxe."

After the football and basketball home games, Student Council and other clubs sponsored dances with music provided by various groups and sound systems such as Spectrum, Jeff Malcolm, and a local band, "Counterpoint."

Plaid shirts and jeans seemed to be the popular attire at the Sadie Hawkins dance. Below, Eric Bammann and Amy Myers are good examples.

The Student Council said it would be a Beach Party, so these Barons brought their blanket along to enjoy the "sandy beach" in the Commons.

Spending the sunny Saturday afternoon, these DeKalb baseball fans watch the Barons triumph over Garrett.

Robin Pranger and Molly Walker find time in their weekend schedules to visit the mall to check out the latest styles.

Trying to keep his "beast" nice and shiny, James LeRoy buffs his car on one of the first sunny days of the year.

Baby sitting is one way that some Barons use their time on weekends. Right, Micolea Jennings takes two of her small friends to the fair.

Weekends--Full of Fun

Are your weekends dull and boring or are they wild and full of fun? Many Barons considered a weekend dull when Mom and Dad said, "No car this weekend," and we were stuck home watching TV or playing Monopoly. But to many, a fun weekend was a weekend planned by our friends during the week.

On Friday and Saturday nights, students could be found having fun at a party, driving the Seventh Street strip, going to the movies, and/or even parking and talking to our friends — allowing enough time to be home before curfew.

Advice to all: Don't carry your fun weekend too far. Make it home early or the next weekend will be the dull and boring one!

Not even the snow or cold weather can stop students from their Friday night cruising and gatherings along the Seventh Street "strip."

When the sun starts shining, the grass needs cutting — as Joe Millspaugh and Brian Davis realize as they figure out how to fix the mower.

What're You Wearing Today?

What do you wear to school? Your attire may depend on the mood you wake up in and what has managed to be washed overnight! If your mood is good and everything is washed, you may decide to wear your Sunday best, but if your mood is bad and Mom decided not to do laundry, you just throw on old blue jeans and a t-shirt.

Everyday school dressing has been unique and different in many ways. Sometimes special outfits were worn by many Barons to show their school spirit or to encourage their team to win an important game or match. The most common outfits of the past and present have been blue jeans, t-shirts, and flannel shirts. Becoming very popular among many students was the punk style, including parachute pants, kamikaze shirts, t-shirts with writing on the sleeves, and athletic pants. Styles of clothing change day after day. What will be tomorrow's outfit?

Not all teachers are Scrooges. Many have pep, as teacher Lisa Biehl demonstrates by taking part in one of the spirit dress-up days.

While girls sometimes dress up for school, the guys prefer their old t-shirts, flannel shirts and blue jeans over their Sunday best.

Sweaters aren't just to keep you warm in the winter months. They have taken a big part in the dressing attire of DHS as shown by Debbie Wyss, left, and Kim Knauer, below.

Who is hiding in that costume? Could it be Marcella Parr as she peps us up on Halloween dress-up day?

T-shirts with writing on the sleeve, as shown by Tim Richards, right, were extremely popular among many students in 1984.

Prom: 'A Walk Down Broadway'

A touch of class was brought to the junior high commons on Saturday, May 5, when the class of '85 presented its prom with the theme of "A Walk Down Broadway."

Most couples started the evening by eating out; one couple even flew to Marshall, Michigan, for a special meal. After arriving and voting for King and Queen, all couples were presented during the Grand March. Dancing to the music of "Endgame" and entertainment by Club Flamingo followed. During the evening, refreshments were served by members of the sophomore class. Troy Albin and Jenny Forrest were crowned King and Queen.

After midnight, most prom-goers changed clothes and went to a variety of post-prom activities including movies, bowling, and an early-morning breakfast.

Junior class officers and sponsors were responsible for planning the prom, the best attended since 1978.

Underclass members get into the act in helping to put up prom decorations on Friday night. Above are Kelly Brandon and Diana Cserep.

A special arch provides the setting as couples are presented for the Grand March. Below, Lisa Manista and Don Wiley take their turn.

A special background was created for photographing prom-goers. Below Chris Toyias and Rhonda Wortman pose for Davidson Studio.

We Work After School Hours

What do you do after school? The bell rings at 3:25 and you rush to the front doors to be free to do what you want the rest of the afternoon.

The guys may take their favorite girls home, making it there early enough so the girls can watch the last few minutes of their favorite soaps.

But many students rush home, change into their working clothes and head for their money-making jobs. While hurrying, they seem to always remember that the time at work is allowing them to make spending money and the time after work is to be spent relaxing.

What type of jobs did Barons have? Students rushed to a variety of jobs such as working at fast food restaurants, department stores, rest homes, and some even worked doing farm chores.

Colonel Sanders? No, not hardly. It's Molly Walker as she packs Kentucky Fried Chicken's famous recipe chicken for hungry customers.

Checking the oil is a routine job for Dave Balzer in his job as a gas station attendant at Freeman's Gas Station in Auburn.

After he has carefully bagged the groceries so that the soft things will be on top, Boe McDowell prepares to carry the customer's sack of goodies to her car.

Sometimes an after-school job involves nothing more difficult than sitting and waiting for the next customer to arrive, so that is what Todd Cheek is doing.

Jerry Antrup looks as if he is ready to start eating the good food that he has been served by Marlene Collins in her after-school job as a waitress.

Washing dishes by hand could be a problem, but Bob Koch demonstrates how he works with an automatic dishwasher.

Audience Is Dazzled By 'Annie'

"Tomorrow! Tomorrow! I love you, tomorrow! It's only a day away." It was DeKalb's presentation of the Broadway smash Annie on May 11 and 12 in the auditorium.

Director Margaret Buttermore and the students worked on the production for six weeks. She was assisted by Gerry Nagel, drama director; Betty Conrad, choreography; Gerry Nagel, set design; and Dick Karkosky, stage band.

Set in New York City during the Depression, the play showed how people band together when faced with hard times and that wealth is meaningless without someone to share it with.

(Right) Dick Karkosky leads the eighteen members of the pit band through one of the many numbers in the score of Annie.

Daddy Warbucks (Todd Bonecutter) talks to Annie (Mindy Roberts) as Grace (Terri Franks, center) listens. He later will tell Annie that she will not be an orphan for long.

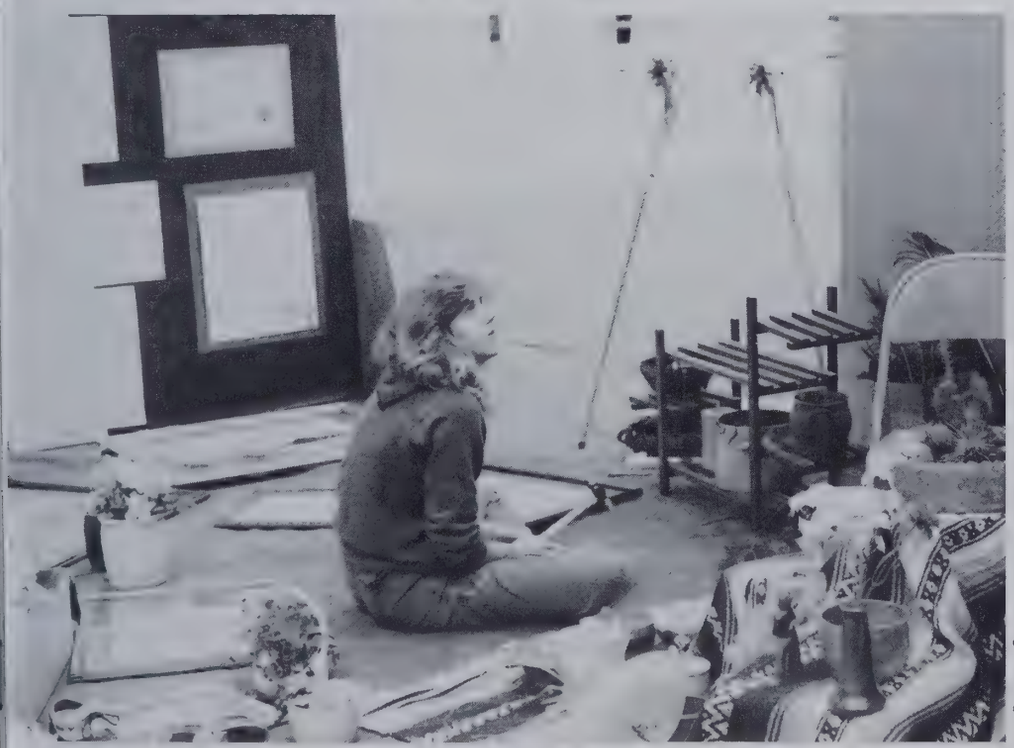
Shirlene Glass wanted someone to keep watch over her art work, so she brought in the Pink Panther to be part of her display.

Creative Barons Display Talents



It was nearly a year in the making, but those who attended said it was worth the wait. "It" was the seventeenth edition of the DeKalb High School Art Show.

After the tarps were placed on the main gym floor, the creative Barons arranged their year's work into attractive displays for friends, family, and faculty to view and admire.

In addition to work produced by art students, many projects representing the Industrial Arts Department were put on display — ranging from graphic arts to woods. Several Home Economics students also displayed their work.

Ceramic piggy banks with cork noses, album covers for rock groups, pen and ink drawings, latch-hook hangings — take your pick. All were displayed in the gym from May 11 through May 13.

Thursday morning in the gym these three girls were found trying to figure out the best way to display their work: left is Joan Lucas; left, below is Michaele Engle; and below is Lori Mooney.

The auditorium was filled with juniors and seniors on the morning of May 9 when the annual Awards Day program was held. Over $34,000 worth of scholarships and awards were presented to various seniors in recognition of their many accomplishments. Winners are named on the facing page.

'May We Always Find New Roads...'

"May we always find new roads to travel, new horizons to explore, and new dreams to call our own" was the motto of the seventeenth class to graduate from DHS. On the afternoon of May 20, all 261 of them gathered in the gym with friends and family in attendance for their commencement.

Speakers selected were Melissa Jeffries, Invocation; Kelly DeLucenay, Welcome; Scott Metzger, Intention; Kim Knauer, Farewell; and Janet Fee, Benediction.

Imogene Mavis played the organ prelude before the ceremony and the band performed during the festivities. Principal Fites presented the class and read the class roll as members of the Board of Education presented the much-coveted diplomas.

"Out Here on My Own" was selected as the senior song. At right, Marla McKown and Todd Bonecutter sing it for the audience.

Art
Classes in Creativity

The great variety of art classes offered at DHS gave students the opportunity to choose exactly which subject interested them. Students could express themselves through drawing, sculpture, painting, photography, and design. Art instructors Mrs. Nagel, Mr. Nagel, and Mrs. Van Horne were always ready to provide advice and assistance.

The annual art show, held each spring was the major goal that art students worked toward. Art from every class was exhibited in the gym for public viewing. Artists enjoy the chance to be recognized and have their work admired. Each person feels the pride and satisfaction of knowing that doing their best is worthwhile.

Another major project involved Drawing and Painting students who painted a large wall mural at the Betz Nursing Home. Each day they worked to produce a covered bridge and other scenes related to the early 1900's for the entertainment of the residents.

Business
Learning Computers

The Business Department offered a wide range of courses, from business law to accounting to computer introduction. These courses were combined by some students and provided an excellent background in business, while other students used business courses to supplement their different curriculums.

Typing was almost considered mandatory and Mr. Kirkton had no shortage of students. Another popular class was Computer Introduction, taught by Mr. Hughes until he left in mid-April for a college coaching job. Two types of computers, Apple and IBM, were used as students advanced from simple programs to long, complex ones.

The office practice and intensive office lab courses placed students in an office setting and taught skills that would be used in a job situation.

Poetry anthologies, term papers, book reports, demonstration speeches — all of these projects and many more were assigned in English classes this year. A new course called Business English was offered for the first time, which gave those students who took it a better chance to prepare themselves to use proper language in the business world.

In the spring, College Prep sophomore English students spent some of their spare time in the library going through books of poetry to find selections in certain styles and by specific poets to fit the requirements for their poetry anthology project. It was with a sense of accomplishment and relief that the assignment was finally handed in.

Once a week Consumer English students worked on a project related to careers. Lana Stoops, left, reads the study sheet before answering the questions.

Brigade, Pep Band
Filled With Spirit

With nearly everyone standing at attention, the woodwinds and brass practice one of the tunes for their field show.

The Baron Brigade was very busy during marching season which began in the heat of the summer with many hours spent on the practice field. They marched in several local and area parades, winning first place at the Bluffton Street Fair and the Sweepstakes Award in the DeKalb Fair Grand Finale parade. Head Drum Major Eric van Straten was assisted by Greg Barth and Angie Harding.

In field competition the Brigade placed seventh at East Noble's Band-o-rama, rated second division in Class B at the ISSMA district contest at Northrop, and participated in the MBA Regional at Lawrence Central. The Brigade also performed a pre-game show at Ball State University on November 12.

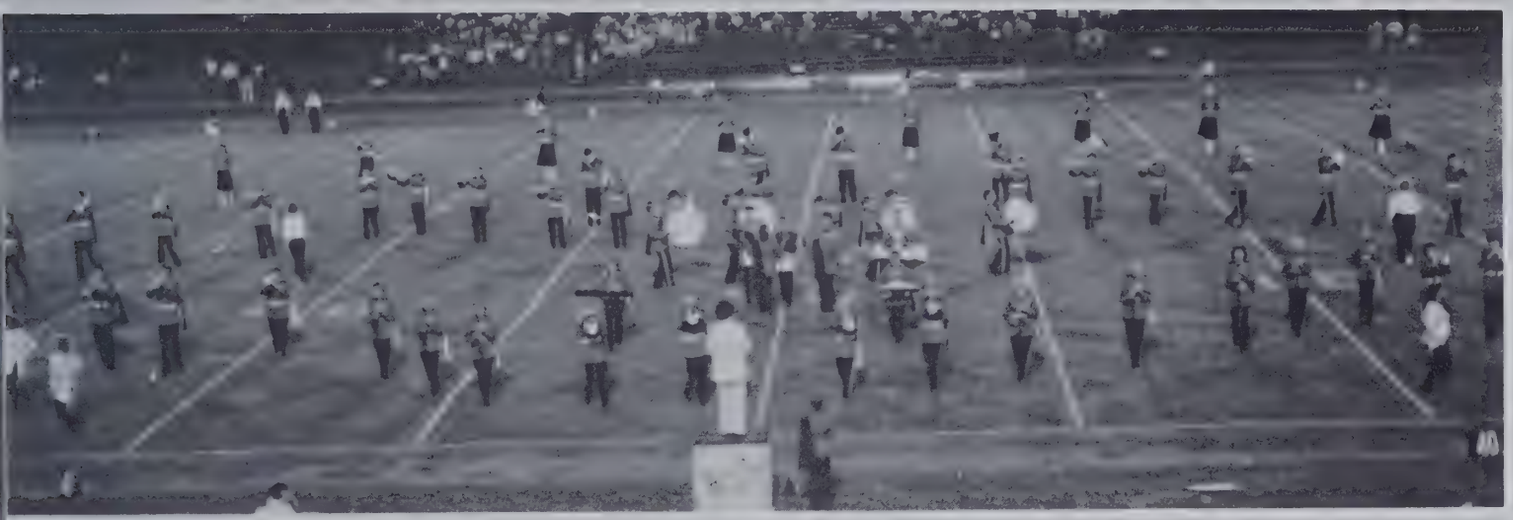
The Baron pep band provided entertainment for home and visiting fans during the basketball season. Playing a variety of contemporary music and pep songs, the band added noise and enthusiasm to the crowd and accompanied the Brigadiers in their pre-game and halftime shows.

Keeping the beat and adding a lot of loud sounds for the basketball fans, Eric Heminger plays his drums and cymbals.

Eyeing the music and the director at the same time, these pep band members play one more song for the crowd.

Doing it over and over until they have the steps just right is what these members of the Baron Brigade must do.

Performing their field competition show for the home football crowd, the Brigade plays Sousa's march "The Thunderer."



Arranging themselves just like they practiced it, these marching band members form an ensemble to play "Farondole."

Apparently some of us can memorize our music more quickly than others can. Eric Diederich and Jeff Minard play their trumpets.

Concert, Jazz Bands Rate 1st Division

(Left) It is all serious business one week before the ISSMA District Contest as Mr. Karkosky conducts. The band received a first division rating.

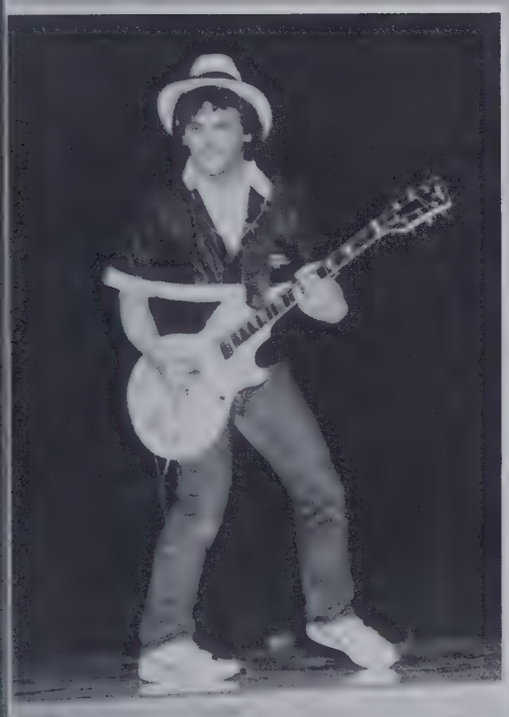
Can playing the flute make you dizzy? Not if you do it right, say Brenda Birk, Doreen Smith, Denise Bridge, and Jeri Crabill, below.

Both the Concert Band and the Jazz Band received first division ratings in their respective ISSMA contests, proving that hard work is sometimes rewarded. One of the judges for the Concert Band awarded them a perfect score.

Getting into full swing after the end of marching season, the band's first concert appearance was the Christmas Concert. Both groups then took part in the Pops Concert in January.

The Baron Review on March 6 was a new event for 1984 and proved to be very popular. Among the featured groups was the Jazz Band, along with selected members of the Concert Band. The Jazz Band also took part in the Elmhurst Jazz Festival on March 24 as well as playing for various school and community functions.

The Concert Band finished the year out by playing in the Spring Music Concert in April and going on a two-day trip for a performance at King's Island. Their final appearance was as the provider of the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance" for graduation on May 20.



Playing with the Jazz Band for the Baron Review, Todd Bishop steps forward with his guitar to the delight of the audience.

No, there aren't seventy-six of them, but the trombone section of the Concert Band adds its mellow and brassy tones to the rest of the band.

Concert Choir
Performing Music

It was a major undertaking, but they managed to combine all choirs from grade nine through grade twelve to sing with "One Voice."

Watch that posture, girls, so that you can breathe correctly. Tammy Burnett, Doreen Smith, and Vickie Clark practice for Concert Choir.

One of two singing groups at DHS, the Concert Choir spent most of its time during its second hour practice period in preparation for various performances. The students even got involved in developing some choreography for the concerts. The Concert Choir was under the direction of Miss Margaret Buttermore.

In addition to performing at the Heimach Center in Auburn, the Concert Choir took part in three major concerts: the Christmas Concert, the Pops Concert, and the Spring Concert. A new experience during the Christmas Concert was singing a song in Latin.

Many members of the Concert Choir took part in the Solo and Ensemble Contest in February and the state music contest. A special money making project in November saw choir members selling cheese, sausage, and cookies to their friends and neighbors.

(Above) As they are just learning the music, members of Concert Choir must rely on looking at the words once in a while.

Members of the Swing Choir join their voices in song as their presentation of " 'S Wonderful" is enjoyed by the audience.

Mindy Roberts puts her whole heart into the singing of "When He Shines" for those people in attendance at the Pops Concert.

Members of the Swing Choir spent many hours working to perfect their moves so that the choreography would blend with the song.

The Swing Choir was a fairly active performing group. In addition to concerts at school, they also performed for various civic groups and appeared on WKJG-TV at Christmas time. A new experience for Swing Choir was performing a madrigal for a concert. The Swing Choir was under the direction of Miss Margaret Buttermore.

Highlighting the year for Swing Choir members was their attendance at three jazz festivals. They attended the Elmhurst and North Side Vocal Jazz Festivals in Ft. Wayne and Western Michigan University's Vocal Jazz Festival. At these festivals the choir members had a chance to work with some of the nation's top experts in the vocal jazz field.

Erin Record was named the outstanding soloist at both Elmhurst and Western Michigan University. Tom Michael was selected as the outstanding bass guitar at the Elmhurst festival.

Phys Ed, Quest
Required & Elective

Physical Education and Quest are two more subjects which were offered at DHS. While Phys Ed was required of all sophomores, Quest was strictly an elective class. Open to all students, Quest was different from any other class. Usually a fairly small class, the students sat in a circle and were more like a family. They helped each other understand such things as peer pressure. When the class studied parenting, they did role-playing in small groups so that they could see how hard it is to be a parent. The class also heard many guest speakers on a variety of topics, such as alcoholism.

Physical fitness was the primary focal point in the phys ed classes. Both the required sophomore class and the advanced elective dealt with all sorts of activities ranging from individual recreational sports to highly competitive team sports, playing outside in good weather and in the gym throughout most of the year.

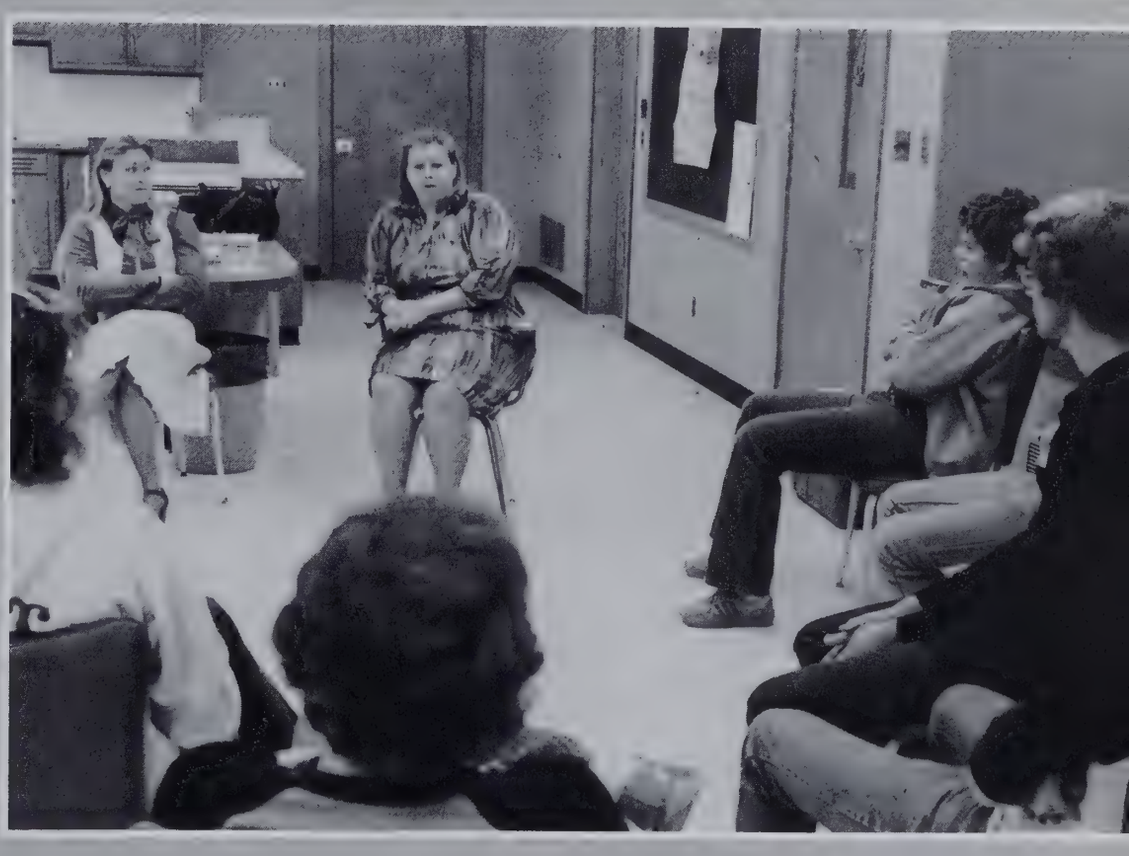
Some of the basic steps and moves necessary for American folk dancing are practiced in their phys ed class by Chris Mettert and Amy Todd.

"Now, how do I pull myself up on the other side of the beam?" is the question as this sophomore's classmates watch him struggle.



During a spirited game of kick ball, Phil Hays heads for home and hopes that the throw from third base will be off-target.

The Quest class listens as Vian Ellsworth of the Northeast Mental Health Center in Auburn tells them all about family counseling.

Tammy Baughman listens carefully as Mr. Jones explains why the Treaty of Versailles did not bring about lasting world peace.

Social Studies, Languages
How's the World?

Life in distant lands was a focal point of study in two departments: Foreign Language and Social Studies. Three foreign languages were included in the curriculum: French, Spanish, and German. Studying any one of these three languages and the countries where they are spoken, elected primarily by college prep students, helped develop an increased awareness of our world community. Foreign language teachers used a wide variety of teaching techniques to accomplish this goal, including cooking native foods and conducting class entirely in that language.

The classes in the Social Studies department were those traditionally taught in high schools. Seniors in government and economics classes learned about the electoral process in preparation for the 1984 Presidential election and studied the development of the American economy in order to better understand the reasons for such things as inflation and recessions.

Math, Science
Numbers Anyone?

With today's rapidly advancing technology, science and math play an increasingly important role in career choices and goals. Because of this, both the science and math departments experienced greater student interest.

The Human Anatomy and Physiology class studied the body and its functions in depth. A highlight of the class was the dissection of cats which enabled students to view the body's systems.

Chemistry and Physics classes studied reactions and composition of chemicals. These classes also provided ample lab experiences, not just lectures and reading.

Classes in the math department were progressive, with the background of one class used in the next. Many students chose to go beyond the basic courses such as Algebra and Geometry and attempted such classes as Algebra II, Trigonometry, Analytical Geometry, and College Prep Math. These classes provided advanced skills and developed logical thinking.

Home Economics
Skills for Living

Learning essential skills that will be useful for everyone's life after high school is what home economics classes are all about. Sewing, cooking, and family relationships are all studied in one way or another.

Clothing I and 2 classes taught students how to make some of their own clothes. In second year, students made a quilt for a class project.

Foods I and 2 were filled with labs and dinners. Students got to evaluate each other's cooking talents. Big projects included Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners and a special noon meal for teachers on one of their workshop days.

The housing class studied both the outside of the house and the inside of the home. Students went on two field trips: to Auburn Mobile Homes and to the underground house south of Auburn.

How do you care for a child? This question was answered by Child Development class. Students were involved in observation days when children would come in to class and play. The classes went on a field trip to the Pre-school for the Handicapped.

Family Care and Relations class did as most people hoped they would. They planned a wedding for themselves. They also learned how to care for ill people. Relating to others was also learned in this class.

Industrial Arts
Doing Handiwork

Are you a handy man or woman? If so, where did you get those skills? The Industrial Arts program allows students to achieve their goals for using manual skills. Classes such as Electricity I and II; Woods I, II, and III; Metals I, II, and III; and various drafting classes help students succeed towards their careers.

Most of the courses offer first, second, and possibly a third year program. Besides learning about electricity, the students had a chance to work with a Timex computer which the Electricity Club furnished. First semester in woods classes began with simple projects, such as salt and pepper shakers, but gradually built up to much more complicated projects in the second semester. Drafting classes did many types of drafting sketches, along with the architectural drafting class having to develop very complete plans for a house.

So if you have a knack for handiwork, DeKalb offers a wide selection of Industrial Arts programs just for you.

Jeff Davis knows that every part of his project must be done right, so he uses the vise to make sure that his square is square.

Knowing that a slip of the hand could ruin his work, Jim Finchum concentrates on inking his plot plan for architectural drafting.

Setting up his project at the start of the period, electricity student Bruce Treesh checks to see that his power supply is all right.

Creating some steam, John Forrest immerses his metals project in a can of oil after the metal has been heated in order to harden it.

After he gets the materials in just the right position, sophomore Jeff Shearer will put on his goggles and weld.

Brian Davis works on his woods project to be just right, so he uses the sander to make the wood nice and smooth.

Sometimes the part you need to fix is hard to get at, as Jim Bellinger, above, shows in his auto mechanics class.

Training students for jobs after high school is a major goal of the vocational classes. All of the subjects listed at the left were taught this year.

For students mechanically inclined, there were classes in auto mechanics, ag mechanics, and small engines. In the latter, students rebuilt small motors that might be used on the farm.

Ag marketing was aimed at marketing the farm product. Students studied the cash grain market and worked with charting the futures market from the Board of Trade in Chicago. During the livestock part of the class, they put their cash flow problems on the computer purchased by the FFA.

The vocational graphic arts class got a lot of practical experience by producing much of the printed material needed by the school, such as athletic and concert programs.

The building trades class built the thirteenth house to be built by DHS students. It was a one story three-bedroom house on Zimmerman Street in Auburn.

Sometimes a mechanic has to take a long hard look at the job ahead of him to decide where he should start, as Darren Carroll, above, demonstrates.

One of Jay Lawson's projects in vocational graphic arts class involves creating a small design and then making it much larger.

Volleyball

The Lady Baron Volleyball team lived it up by having the first winning season in seven years. They proved to the fans they could win by defeating Fremont 15-1, 15-1 to win the sectional. At regional they beat Carroll in the first round but then encountered a tough Luers team and lost in three sets. This was the first time in school history that a team made it that far.

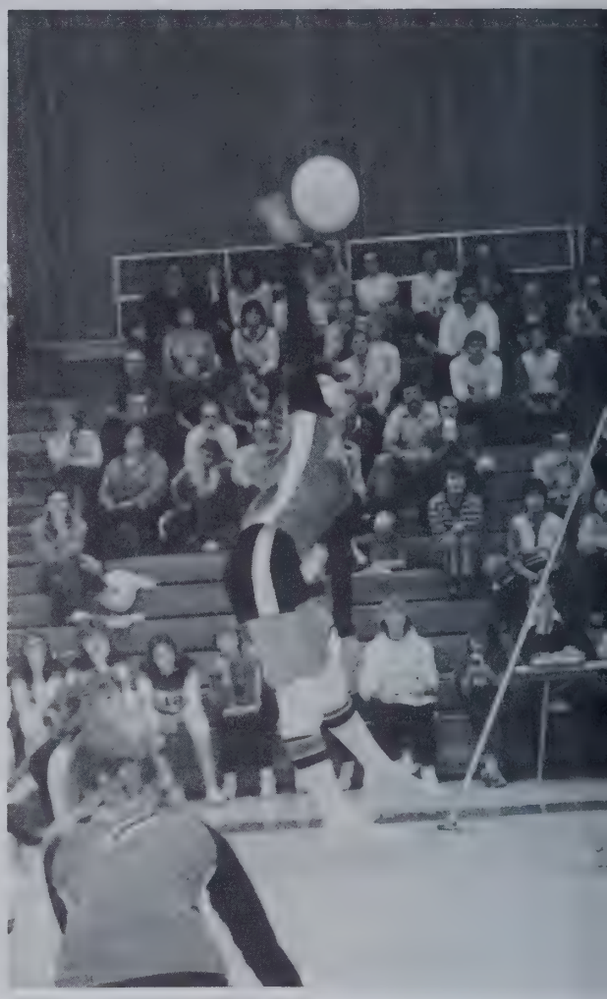
Earlier signs of success included winning the conference championship, which was a first for DeKalb. The team traveled to Clinton Central's Invitational, which they also won.

Setting records was what the team did best. A total of 19 team records were set. They established the longest winning streak of 31 games and 21 matches.

In addition, over 35 individual school records were set by team members. Senior Jenny Smith set 19 of these. She had 268 spiking kills and a 54 kill percentage. Lis Palmer's records were in setting, with 515 attempts and 312 assists. Micolea Jennings also set two records: serving aces with a total of 86 and 281 attempts.

Team members were honored for their hard work by being named All-NEIAC. They were Jenny Smith and Lis Palmer on the first team and Deb Wyss and Diana Sanders on the second team. Named to the Journal-Gazette All-Area team was Jenny Smith.

The reserve team struggled a bit, managing to compile a 6-8 season record.



Jenny Smith is doing what she did best to the opponent. Jenny's stats included an 89.5 spiking efficiency with 268 kills in 496 attempts.

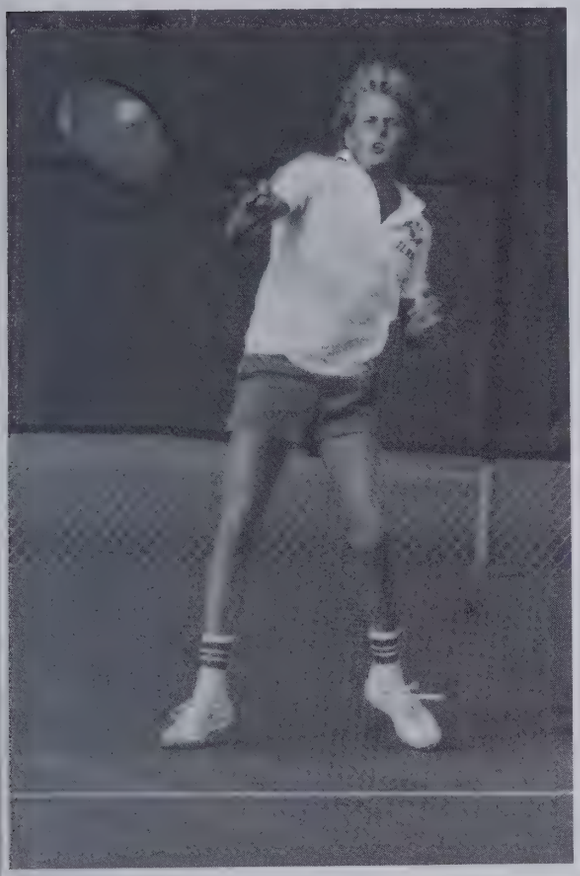
Tennis

Beginning the season at number three singles and then teaming with Steve Rieke at number one doubles, Jeff Western works toward another Baron victory.



Off to a blazing start, the Baron netmen won their first ten dual meets in a row before running into Angola, who handed them their first dual loss of the campaign. The team ended up with a 14-4 record, 6-2 in conference play for a tie for second place.

The highlight of the year was the play of junior Tim Bassett at number two singles. Tim finished undefeated in 21 matches, being taken into the third set only twice. Since only number one singles players can advance as individuals in the post-season tournament, Tim's season ended with the sectional.

Other individual records included Doug Lockwood's 12-9 at number one singles; Jeff Western and Steve Rieke at number one doubles with a 14-7 mark; and Judd Chaille and Darrell Gabbard were 13-8 at number two doubles. Shawn Mitchener recorded a fine 17-3 season mark for the reserve tennis team.

The Barons finished third in the DeKalb Invitational behind Norwell and Angola and lost to West Noble in the semifinals of the DeKalb sectional. The team was coached by Andy Fox with Bob Menzie as a volunteer assistant.

Juniors Judd Chaille and Darrell Gabbard played at number two doubles. Below, Judd appears to be in deep concentration as he returns the ball.

Football

It was a record-setting year in many ways for the football Barons. Running head-on into state powerhouse Elkhart Central in the opening game helped to toughen the team, which ended 6-4 overall, 3-3 in conference action. A total of 51 school records were established during the 1983 campaign.

Offensive records were many. The team had 149 total first downs, 108 of them rushing. The team gained 2,212 yards on the ground, with Kevin Klein being the first Baron running back ever to gain over a thousand yards with his 1043 yards gained for a 6.3 average in 166 carries. Klein also scored 12 touchdowns rushing to put him third on the all-time list for season scoring.

The game against Adams Central provided some offensive records with 61 being the most points scored and 53 the largest margin of victory. The team gained 9.2 yards per offensive play in that game. The 21 first downs rushing against Carroll was a record as were the 511 yards of total offense.

The defensive team also made a name for itself. Only two first downs were allowed against East Noble and Homestead gained zero yards through the air.

Dan Brook had 154 tackles, 76 solo tackles with his Homestead game being best with 21 tackles, 12 solo. Rod Warner had 27 tackles for loss of yards for 113 total yards lost. Tony Baker recovered five fumbles and Todd Lantz returned two fumbles for touchdowns.

The reserve team experienced a banner year with their record of 7-1, with the only loss being to Homestead by one point.

Brett Pontoni strides out to stay in the lead, where he finished in 15 dual meets. Brett's season-best for 5,000 meters was 16:01.

Cross Country

Both Baron cross country teams had winning seasons. The boys found themselves with a tough act to follow, but lost only four dual meets, three to state-ranked teams. The team tied Angola for first in the conference meet, but finished second when the sixth man's score was added.

Junior Brett Pontoni paced the team all year, winning 15 of the 17 dual meets. Brett placed seventh in semi-state and fiftieth at state. Greg Pepple was second at conference and fourth at sectional.

John Reesman, though plagued by injury, finished tenth at Harding's Invitational and fourth at conference. Rick Smith's best performance came at regional, where he placed seventeenth, a key factor in the Baron's second place finish. Rounding out the top seven runners were Keith Pepple, Dave VanWye and Darin Meschberger.

The girls improved throughout the season with their finishes at West Noble, conference, and sectional being outstanding. Junior Sherrie Reinig earned second team All-NEIAC honors and freshman standouts Mary Reesman and Cathy Wellman were named to first team All-NEIAC and All-sectional respectively. Lisa Lockwood won a special team award for mental attitude.

Basketball

It was an up and down year for the Baron varsity. Three of their first four games were against state-ranked powers and they did well enough in those games to be ranked sixteenth in the state at one time.

Playing in the Hall of Fame Classic held at Marion highlighted the early part of the season. There they lost by two points to Marion and won the consolation game with Evansville Bosse.

In NEIAC action, the team won the conference tournament in January but had to share the regular season championship with Homestead.

The only returning starter, Jeff Rekeweg led the team in several categories, including scoring and rebounding. Jeff scored 450 points, 18.7 points per game, while shooting 46.9 percent from the field and 81.2 percent from the line. He led the team with 9.2 rebounds per game. These statistics were good enough to have Jeff named to the first team All-NEIAC and the area Prep of the Year.

Also named to the NEIAC first team was Jim Finchum. Troy Albin and Steve Warner were named to the second team.

Besides Rekeweg, three other players scored over 200 points: Gary Warstler (222), Jim Finchum (218), and Steve Warner (201). Troy Albin at guard led the team with 126 assists and 49 steals. Warstler was second on the team in rebounding with 206 for an 8.5 per game average.

Reserve Basketball

Very successful seasons were experienced by both reserve basketball squads. The girls turned in a 15-1 season and the boys junior varsity recorded 17 wins and only three losses.

The major disappointment for the girls was not winning their own holiday tournament, losing to East Noble in the opening game because of a very cold shooting day, hitting only 12 percent of their shots, both from the field and from the line. This was to be their only loss of the year.

Leading scorers for the girls were Tonya Muzzillo (117), Micolea Jennings (78), and Linda Conrad (71). Three girls shot over 40 percent from the field: Pam Hefty, Tonya Muzzillo, and Val Link. Leading the group in free throws was Micolea Jennings with 54 percent. As a team, they shot 46 percent from the line.

The boys had the second best year ever for a junior varsity team. They set an offensive record by scoring 1098 points for an average of 54.9 per game.

Brian Kelley led the team in individual statistics, scoring 155 points for an 8.6 average. Six other players averaged over five points per game, giving the team balanced scoring. The team hit an outstanding 43.4 percent on field goals with Toby Refner leading the way at 55 percent. Jon Kistler's 82.3 free throw average was tops on the team, which averaged 70 percent from the line. Kelley was the leading rebounder with 80 and Scott Grogg led in assists with 60.

The sophomore boys also played a full schedule of games and came away with an outstanding record of 11 wins and 2 losses.

Basketball

An undefeated regular season doesn't happen often in high school basketball, but the 83-84 Lady Barons managed this remarkable feat — their only loss coming in the regional finals — ending the year 23-1.

Along the way, the team compiled some impressive statistics. They set new field goal and free throw records at 44.3 and 61.7 percent respectively, scoring an average of 59.8 points a game. Their defensive average was an outstanding 34.7.

Individuals on the team also had impressive records. Senior Leila Crossley established six new records including the most points in one game (32) and the highest season scoring average (17.96). Crossley's career field goal percentage is 50.5 and she picked up a total of 191 rebounds. Sophomore Laura Carroll led the team in rebounding, however, with a total of 204. Carroll scored an average of 10.2 points per game.

Senior Chris Albin was outstanding at the point guard position, averaging 8.4 points and leading the team in assists (126) and steals (78). Also playing guard, Lis Palmer averaged 8 points and had 103 assists.

Crossley, Albin, and Palmer were named to the conference first team and Carroll was selected for the second team. Crossley was also named the area Prep of the Year.

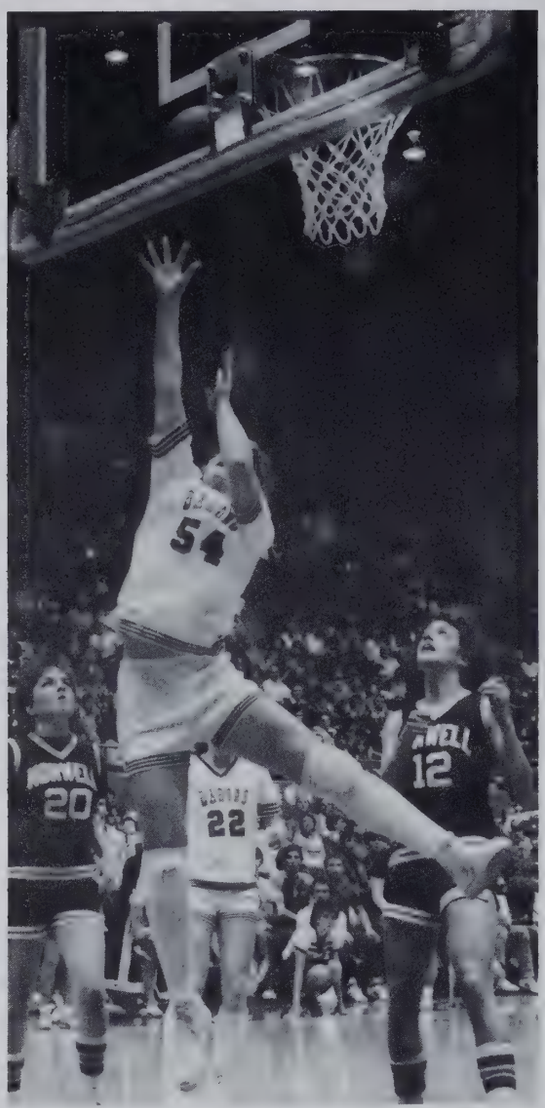
Shelley Meyer tosses the ball up in hopes that it will fall through the net. Meyer came on strong at the end of the season.

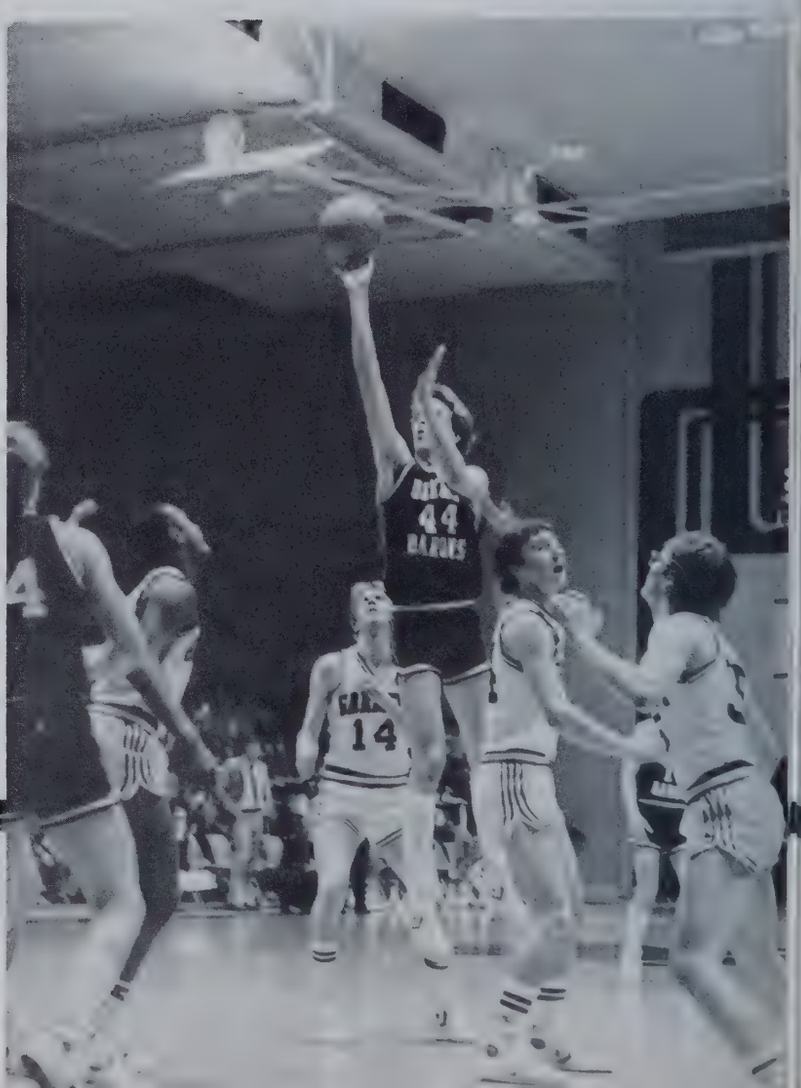
Senior guard Lis Palmer drives toward the basket. Lis contributed 192 points during her final season as a Lady Baron.

As everyone else waits for a possible rebound, sophomore Laura Carroll prepares to shoot. Laura scored 244 points in her first varsity season.

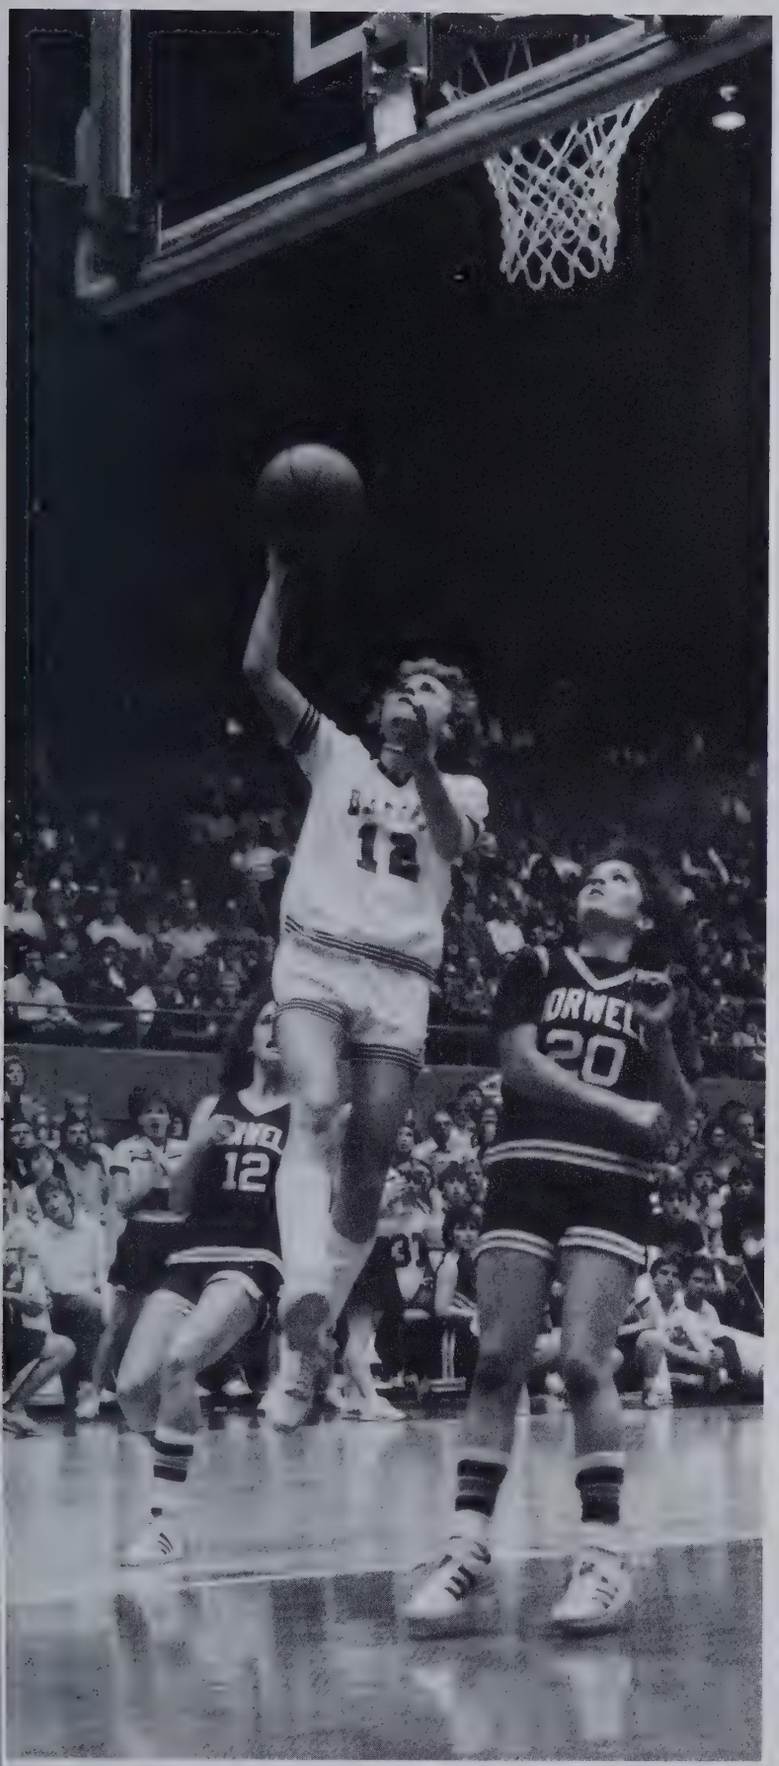


Above, Snider's tough defense tries to cut off Lis Palmer's move to the basket. Right, junior Jim Finchum scores two of his 13 points against Garrett in a losing effort.

Left, senior All-Area Prep of the Year Leila Crossley puts up another one for two of her 413 season points. Below, Jerry Rinehart and Garrett's John Bodey try to occupy the same space at the same time.



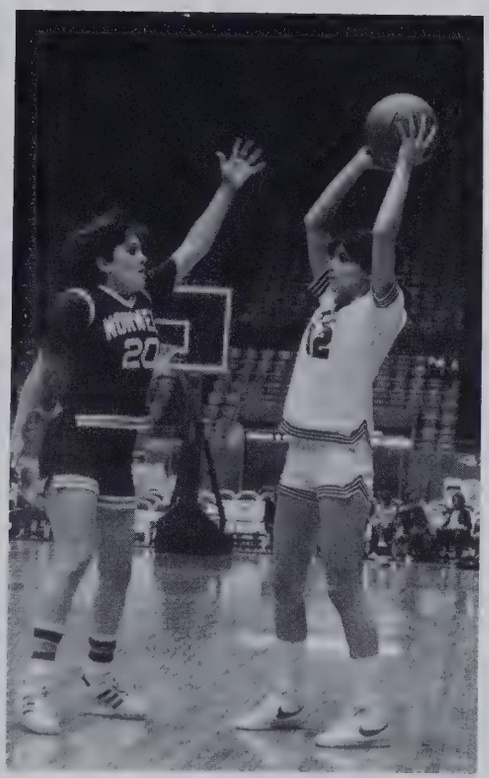
Tourney Time



Post-season tournament play had a different look in 1984 with the girls sectional being played at DeKalb and Garrett hosting the boys. Neither team seemed to have a sure bet for a championship with the girls having to face Woodlan, which had lost only one game all season. After easy wins over Fremont and Eastside, the Lady Barons proved themselves equal to the task of beating Woodlan in the finals, winning by a 69-54 score. Leila Crossley sparked the offense by scoring 32 points, a new single-game scoring record.

The following week was not so good for the team as they traveled to Ft. Wayne's Coliseum for the regional. After defeating Norwell 69-55, they met Snider in the finals, a team they had earlier defeated. This time it was not to be, as a tough Snider defense held the Lady Barons to just 44 points, their second lowest total of the season.

The boys knew that their road to defend their sectional title would be a rough one when they drew arch-rival Garrett in the first round, a team which had defeated them by 15 points early in the season. Although the Barons had apparently improved, it still was not enough as the Railroaders again emerged victorious, 53-49.



Driving in for a fast-break lay-up, senior point guard Chris Albin scores two more in the regional opening round game against Norwell.

Senior starter Jenny Smith looks to pass the ball closer to the basket. Shooting 42 percent from the field, Smith also pulled down 85 rebounds.

Wrestling

Topped off by Dan Brook's state championship, the Baron wrestling season went very well. Although the team got off to a bad start, losing their first two meets, they came back strong to win their last ten meets in a row. They also placed first in the East Noble Invitational and the sectional held at Carroll.

Brook ended his high school wrestling career in a blaze of glory, with a 34-0 season record and the state title in the 167 pound class. Brook won 22 by pins and 12 by decision, the most important decision victory coming in his 6-5 win over Todd Kersteins of Jasper in the final match.

Several other grapplers had outstanding seasons with over 20 wins: Yogi Weimer (23-6), Charlie VanHorne (21-5), and Bob Thompson (28-5). Both Brook and Thompson had over 20 wins by pins and Greg Hartman had the fastest pin in 22 seconds.

The Baron junior varsity also had a good year, winning seven and losing only two. Keith Jennings had the fastest pin — in 13 seconds — and six of Todd Moreland's team-high nine wins came in pins.

Gymnastics

Smiling as she prepares for her floor exercise routine is optional gymnast Jenny Forrest, a senior leader on the team.

The Baron gymnasts enjoyed a good season, breaking many school records and improving team records. The optional team posted a record of 9-6 and intermediate had a 7-7 season.

The optional team's goal was to break the old record of 87.6 set in 1980. They did that 8 times with five scores in the 90's. Also, with only one other 9 being scored in DHS history, two intermediate team members did it this year. Brenda Slone scored 9.0 on floor and Kellie Boger had a 9.25 on vault.

In the conference meet at East Noble, the Barons finished second to Homestead, who later repeated as state champs.

The team captured a second place in the sectional and advanced five girls to the regional. For the optional team, Jenny Forrest placed second on beam, second on floor, and tied for fourth on vault; Denise Blomeke took fifth on floor and on bars she tied for fourth place. Carole Miller took third on vault and Anne Myers captured first on the beam.

For the intermediate team at sectional, Brenda Slone succeeded in taking third on beam, fifth on floor, second on bars and second all-around. Kellie Boger also had a good day, taking third on bars and first on vault. Moving on to Regional were Jenny Forrest, Brenda Slone, Anne Myers, Carole Miller, and Kellie Boger. Kellie was the only Baron gymnast to advance to the state level. She finished 22nd on the vault in the state meet.

Golf

They did it! They really did it! May 14 was the date and Norwood Country Club was the place. The golf team won the conference meet and thereby clinched the NEIAC All-Sports Banner for the Barons. Jon Kistler led the team in that match with a 78 for 18 holes.

John Reesman did very well in the sectional with a 77 and qualified to go on to the LaFayette regional, but only the first three teams qualified.

In dual meets, the team played fairly consistent golf. Leading the team with a 40.1 average was Jon Kistler, and Jeff Marsh was close behind with a very steady 40.5.

The reserves were hot on the heels of the varsity. Their record was 10-3 and the best reserve average of 43.5 was posted by Jeff Howard.

Girls' Track

It takes a lot of people to make up a team, but at times the girls' track team seemed nearly a one-woman show: Jenny Smith. She placed DeKalb eighth in the Sectional by capturing first place in the long jump, third in the 300 meter hurdles, and fourth in high jump. Smith qualified for State in long jump by placing third at regional.

Named the outstanding athlete at the East Noble Relays for the second year in a row, Smith graduated holding four school records, setting two in 1984: 45.8 in the 300 meter hurdles and 5'6¼" in the high jump. Penny Foster also set a school record with a discus toss of 108'10".

The Lady Barons had balanced scoring after Smith, with enough girls placing to finish second behind Homestead in the conference meet and scoring 5-1 in meets against NEIAC foes. They finished third at the East Noble Relays behind Woodlan and Carroll.

Freshman Mary Reesman concentrates on her pace and timing as she tries to stay ahead of the pack in the 1600 meter run.

Boys' Track

The boys' track team did not set any records in 1984, but they did turn in some respectable performances on their way to a 3-4 season and third place in the conference.

In the tough Ft. Wayne sectional Lex Yarian high jumped 6'4", just ½" short of the school record, but that just tied him for sixth place. Placing second at sectional was Brett Pontoni in the 3200 meter run with a time of 9:37.7. Charlie VanHorne's time of 52 seconds in the 400 meters was just .4 short of a school record, but failed to place.

Brian Dapp put it all together at the Goshen Relays to win the shot put with a heave of 48'6 ¾".

Head coach of the 1984 boys' track team was Charlie Barnum.

Competing in the discus, right, is junior Brian Dapp. Dapp's better event was the shot put, where his season best was 48'6 3/4".

Tennis

The girls' tennis team had a good spring with an 11-7 season. Their record of 5-3 against conference opponents placed them third in the NEIAC.

Angie Menzie, at number one singles, had a record nearly identical to that of the team, at 11-6. Brenda Graber won her first seven matches before losing 6-7, 0-6 to Homestead's Pat Arcila.

The best season record was compiled by Amy Waanders and Cindy Goodwin at 15-3. They were taken into the third set only twice all year.

The reserves had a very good year, also, winning the junior varsity tourney against Carroll, Leo, and East Noble.

Baseball

Thirteen is an unlucky number, and it was for the Barons as their season ended with the thirteenth loss of the year, a 1-0 loss to East Noble in the sectional. They finished 5-3 in the conference for third place.

Offensively, the team lacked the power that some past teams have had. With a team average of .270, only three regular players had averages over .300: Kevin Klein (.369), Troy Albin (.346), and John Findley (.341). Bryan Lockwood was close with .293. Albin accounted for 46 runs, scoring 26 and batting in 20 more. Kevin Klein led the team with 34 hits, 3 homeruns, and 21 RBI's. He also scored 21 runs.

In other categories, team leaders included John Findley with 15 stolen bases in his 48 times on base. Brad Jones walked 19 times, and Jack Dickson's 5 sacrifices also was the best for the Barons.

The pitching staff recorded an ERA of 2.75. Tyler Alexander had the most wins with 5, added to 3 losses and 2 saves and a 2.34 ERA. Nate Brace's 1.22 ERA was the best of the regular pitchers, with 4 wins, no losses, and 2 saves. Adam Kroemer was the team workhorse, pitching for 56 innings, recording 74 strikeouts and 49 walks for a 4 won, 4 lost record.

The Baron baseball junior varsity had an outstanding year, going undefeated until the next to the last game of the year. It was truly a team effort, with many players contributing to the success. Scott Thimlar and Mike Cochran shared the honor of leading with 12 hits, including 5 doubles each. Cochran also scored the most runs, 11, and stole the most bases, 9. Jamie Forrest's 7 walks led the team as did Joe Rodecap's 2 triples.

The team batting average was .272 with six players with over 15 times at bat hitting over .300: Rick Endsley, Todd Myers, Tim Murdock, Scott Sproat, Ron Warstler, and Scott Thimlar.

In the pitching department, the staff posted an outstanding ERA of 1.55. Two pitchers posted four wins apiece: Steve Warner and Mike Cochran. Warner led the staff with 42 strike outs in nearly 28 innings pitched.

The ninth grade team played one game and won it 7-5 against East Noble. Chris Straw was the winning pitcher and Chris Barnett pitched two scoreless innings in relief.

Getting ready to let fly with another pitch is sophomore Steve Warner. Steve had an ERA of 1.01 for the Baron junior varsity.

Student Council Helps Sponsor Sadie Hawkins, Computer Dating

One of the first activities of Student Council was that of playing matchmaker. A computer dating service was hired to match up each person with the ten most compatible members of the opposite sex. The results were available just in time to help the girls decide who to ask to the Sadie Hawkins Dance, another Student Council event.

The Baron Buggy, a type of Welcome Wagon, was established to help new students and sophomores adjust to DHS. However, students were not the only ones to be the recipients of Student Council hospitality. A Teachers' Tea held in the fall and a Teachers' Breakfast in the spring helped students to get better acquainted with teachers.

The most popular Student Council activities were the convocations and dances. Several convos were presented during the year including the Campus Life multi-media convo and a convo and concert by the Florida band, Free Fare.

Besides the Sadie Hawkins Dance, the other theme dance took place in April. Instead of the MORP, council members agreed to use spring fever to their advantage and sponsor a Beach Party Dance. Students were encouraged to think "summer" and dress that way. After-game dances were held throughout the football and basketball seasons.

Student Service Gives Barons Opportunities

Students helping teachers and their fellow students is what student service was all about. Students got out of their study hall to go to a teacher's office and do such things as grade papers or to work in the library, book store, or office.

Students work toward awards. Workers receive points for hours worked: one for each hour during school and two for each hour after school. When they get 150 points, they receive a silver medal. A gold medal is presented after 300 points and a trophy is the reward for 450 points.

Student service workers learned various skills that would help to prepare them for a job after they graduate.

Duane Sachy, top, helps out in the library by searching through the cards to help check in books and film strips that have been returned.

Some student service workers do routine tasks for their teachers so the teachers can prepare lessons. Here, Bertha Hicks works on a bulletin board.

Janet Wiggins adds some more information to the activitiy board in the main hall as part of her student service work in the guidance office.

Clubs Enjoy Language Banquet

All three foreign language clubs at DHS combine forces each spring to stage the Foreign Language Banquet. Hosted this year by the French Club, the banquet provided a chance for the students to sample foods with a broad international flavor — representing the native lands where French, German, and Spanish are spoken.

Following the meal, each club provided entertainment for the others. Mr. Love narrated a short slide presentation about a trip to Paris. Unfortunately some gremlins had gotten into his slides so that the narration and the pictures seldom matched.

The Spanish Club provided some musical entertainment, with Cecelia Jimenez singing a song from her native land of Mexico. The German Club ended the evening's festivities with a skit, the point of which was never made clear, but members of the audience were allowed to ask questions.

Food played a major role in at least two other Spanish Club activities. They had both a Christmas banquet and an end-of-year banquet at El Rey Restaurant. They also took a field trip to see some Spanish dancers in Ft. Wayne.

For money-making activities, Spanish Club sponsored two aluminum can drives and an after-game dance. The funds earned helped finance a scholarship for some lucky senior.

Spanish Club officers were President Rick Smith, Vice-President Sheldon Lockwood, Secretary Kim Lockwood, and Treasurer Rusti Coleman.

Adding a Latin touch of spirit to the Homecoming parade festivities is the float prepared by the members of the Spanish Club.

Sometimes Spanish Club committees meet rather informally. Just ask Stacey Wildermuth, Laura Mawe, Amy Mason, Holly Haiflich, and Jodi Rowan.

German, French Language Clubs Sponsor Dances

Two of the foreign language clubs at DHS are the French Club and German Club. The German Club was busy during every season of the year. In the summer of 1983, it sponsored a trip to Europe which was taken by many club members. In the fall, in addition to football concessions, the group took a field trip to Ft. Wayne to see a touring group from Austria present a folklore show.

German Club's winter activities included sponsoring the Christmas Formal and making money, food, and toy donations to school drives. Finally, spring saw the group taking its annual trip to Frankenmuth, Michigan, and selling concessions at baseball games. The funds earned went toward awarding three club scholarships valued at over $400.

German Club officers were President Jenny Brown, Vice-President Eric van Straten, Secretary Wendy Brown, and Treasurer Angie Menzie.

For a small group, French Club was quite active. Their projects included the sale of Baron booster buttons. They also sold flowers at Valentine's time and sponsored the Sweetheart Dance. Officers of French Club were President Kim Knauer, Vice-President Brenda Slone, Secretary Betty Billings, and Treasurer Sara Hilkey.

Cheerleaders Work Hard For Spirit

Cheerleading is nearly a year-round sport. Members of this year's squad were selected the previous spring so that they would have time in the summer to begin working on routines so they would look like a polished unit when football season started. They also attended a cheerleading camp at DePauw University where they received a spirit award and were one of the top six finalist squads.

In the fall in addition to cheering at all football games, the girls conducted a cheerleading clinic which was attended by over 150 aspiring cheerleaders.

Besides physical stamina and strong vocal cords, Baron cheerleaders also needed to have artistic skill as they created many signs and posters to put in the halls as well as hoop covers for the teams to smash through before each game.

Coordinating all of this activity was sponsor Mrs. Cheryl Kroemer, assisted by varsity captain Tonya Baker.

Top, varsity and reserve cheerleaders combine in a formation for the fans who traveled to the game at Fort Wayne North Side.

Yum, yum. Is it true? Can Jon Kistler and Phil Ankney make pop corn really mouth-watering good while they strive for their points in Letterwinners?

Concessions Anyone ?

Who were those people that were willing to help you in the concession stand and you saw at every game? They were our very own Letterwinner Club members.

Each time the members worked at a game, they scored points towards the point system. The top finishers were treated to a dinner in Fort Wayne. T-shirts and patches for their letter jackets were awarded to those reaching a certain number of points.

Keeping order and holding this year's offices were seniors Lis Palmer, President; Denise Brown, Vice-President; and Deb Wyss, Secretary-Treasurer.

Can two sophomores handle the task of counting concession stand money? George Farrell and Laura DePew show they can.

Learning Agriculture From The Ground Up

The future of farming is in the hands of the farmers of tomorrow. The DHS chapter of Future Farmers of America worked toward the improvement of agriculture.

The chapter's land lab near the school was a stop on the ASCS field day tour in the fall. Nearly sixty farmers stopped and looked at the different types of tillage they were trying.

During the county fair, the chapter operated Young McDonald's Farm. It was filled with all kinds of livestock from goats to chickens.

In November, Tom Orwig, Dale Rakestraw, Holly Ferguson, Rod Dunn, Brian Schuman, and Chris Gibson attended national convention in Kansas City. Some of their stops along the way were at John Deere plants, Lincoln's childhood home, and the Chicago Board of Trade.

The chapter elected Tricia Bry to represent it at district contest as chapter sweetheart. She was judged on leadership, community service, and knowledge. She placed first and attended state competition.

Six members filled out applications for the Hoosier Farmer award, the highest degree the state association gives. Tom Orwig received the honor.

In March, the FFA worked as tour guides for the Indiana Ag Day tour held at the Deetz farm. Third graders from the school district saw all different types of livestock.

All of these activities, plus more, made FFA one of the more active groups at DHS.

FFA members Rod Dunn and Tim Rinehold study the jar of beans which students guessed the count of for a chance at two free sectional tickets.

This is just one of the jobs Tricia Bry did while spending six months in Panama with farm families and attending ag school.

Speech Team Captures 4th in State

The Speech Team's season-long goal was to win the sectional. The dream turned into reality, with DeKalb nearly doubling the score of second place with a total of 61 points over Northrop and South Side. DeKalb's first and only freshman to qualify for the regional tournament was Angie Metzger, who received ninth place in impromptu.

Not stopping at the sectional, continued success carried through to the regional with DeKalb beating Plymouth by 2½ points, 46 to 43 ½.

State competition was tough, but DHS made its presence known, finishing fourth behind Chesterton, Plymouth, and Munster.

The Speech Team prepared for the state competition by taking part in various invitationals throughout the state during the year, going as far away as Chesterton and Rossville. They also hosted their own invitational meet in February.

To get a taste of competition from other parts of the country, eight Speech Team members attended a two-day meet at Bradley University, competing against teams from as far away as Florida.

The year concluded on a high note as two students taking part in the National Forensic League District Competition qualified for the nationals in June of 1984. Scott Metzger placed first in boys' extemporaneous and Kelly DeLucenay was first in the girls' extemporaneous. This marked the first time that two DHS students qualified for nationals in the same year.

Scott Metzger works on research for his extemp speech. Scott made it to nationals by placing first in the National Forensic League District meet.

Marching Their Lives Away

Ending one season and starting the next, the Brigadiers were always on the go, year round.

How does a person become a Brigadier? Good question. In the spring, a tryout was held for anybody finishing 9th grade to 11th grade. At the tryout the group was taught a short routine and they performed it in front of judges. These judges were Corps leader Karen Roark, band director Richard Karkosky, and assistant band director Kevin Campbell.

The members who were chosen began practice in June and it continued through March. They performed at every home football and basketball game as well as in band contests.

Chosen to serve as captains and squad leaders were Mandy Brown, Bryan Nugen, Dawn Snavley, Pennie Forrest, Lisa Rowan, Jenny Grimm, and Debbie Gunter.

The Baron Review was a new Brigadier and band project added this year. Presented in early spring to a packed auditorium, many routines, both individual and group, were presented, to the delight of the audience.

FEA, FHA Groups Prepare For Future

Future Educators in Action and Future Homemakers of America are two of the smaller organizations at DHS, but that doesn't mean that they aren't active.

The FHA spent some of their time on the road, as they attended two district conventions and the state convention. For social events they went bowling for one club activity and to a movie and out for a pizza afterward for another.

FHA also broadened its members' experience by making a visit to the DeKalb Humane Shelter and entertaining the children at the Kiddie Kollege in Waterloo. A special banquet was held during the year to honor senior members.

FHA officers were Nicole Schiffli, President; Jo Hamman, Vice-President; Denise Peffley, Secretary; and Janet Hamman, Treasurer.

Future Educators in Action, in order to learn more about teaching, had as a special project a tutoring program in cooperation with the junior high. Members used study hall time to work with students having academic difficulty. FEA members did things throughout the year, especially on special days, to show the teachers that someone appreciates them. They also conducted bake sales through the year in order to provide a scholarship for an active senior member.

Officers of FEA were Robin Stone, President; Amy MacDowall, Vice-President; Rene DePew, Secretary; and Sara Hilkey, Treasurer.

Groups Take Field Trips

Three DHS organizations had a field trip as one of their major activities for the year. The National Honor Society went to Indianapolis to see the state legislature and Children's Museum. Science Club visited Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry and Planetarium. And the Electricity Club visited Pembleton Electronics in Ft. Wayne.

In adidtion to their trip, Electricity Club studied and worked with a minicomputer and constructed individual electronics projects. Officers were Tom Gaskill, President; Jim Culler, Vice President; Mark Wilcoxson, Secretary; and Gary Petre, Treasurer.

The Science Club sponsored a dance and took a trip to the Auburn Foundry. Officers were Doug Lockwood, President; John Mergy, Vice-President; and Marcella Parr, Secretary.

The National Honor Society participated in a local government exchange day and also took part in some service projects by helping with eye testing and serving as open house guides. New members were inducted on April 30 at a special banquet, and junior members passed out bulletins at graduation. Officers were Doug Lockwood, President; Eric Van Straten, Vice-President; Deb Wyss, Secretary; and Lis Palmer, Treasurer.

Personalized match-book covers are always a popular Junior Achievement product. Below, junior Larry Keen helps turn out a few hundred of them.

Two Groups Provide For Outside Activities

Two organizations in which many Barons take part but which have most of their activities outside of the school are Junior Achievement and Campus Life.

Junior Achievement is sponsored by local industries. There were four JA companies in 1984. Each group of students elected officers and decided just what to call their group. They met once a week between November and February in the JA building on 15th Street in Auburn.

The object of JA is to teach students how corporations operate. They sponsor trips to conventions and other meetings. The groups are supervised by employees of the sponsoring companies.

Making a top quality product at the least price possible is the goal, with a big sale being held at Glenbrook towards the end of the season.

Campus Life is another organization which touched the lives of many Barons. The most direct effect was seen in two convos presented to the student body. In the fall, the Mousehole group, Arc, performed. In April a multi-media presentation called "Can We Talk?" was provided by Campus Life.

In addition, under the direction of Ken Mills, Campus Life held many meetings in students' homes dealing with topics of special interest to teenagers and also sponsored special events such as a Burger Bash in the fall and a trip to Florida in the spring.

Bat Girls, Mat Maids Assist Athletes

Successful teams can't always be organized without a little extra help, which was what the Mat Maids and Bat Girls provided.

The ten girls involved in Mat Maids helped the wrestling team not only by working concessions and folding mats, but also by acting as a cheering section during the matches. Captain of the 1984 Mat Maids was Suzanne Chavez.

The Bat Girls were very important to the baseball team, doing such necessary tasks as taking admission money, selling refreshments, recovering bats, and raising team morale. Before school and during the lunch hour, one or more of the girls could be found manning the tables where Barons guessed the next game's score, hoping to win from KFC or the local DQ. Nine girls participated in Bat Girls and Suzanne Chavez served as the group's captain.

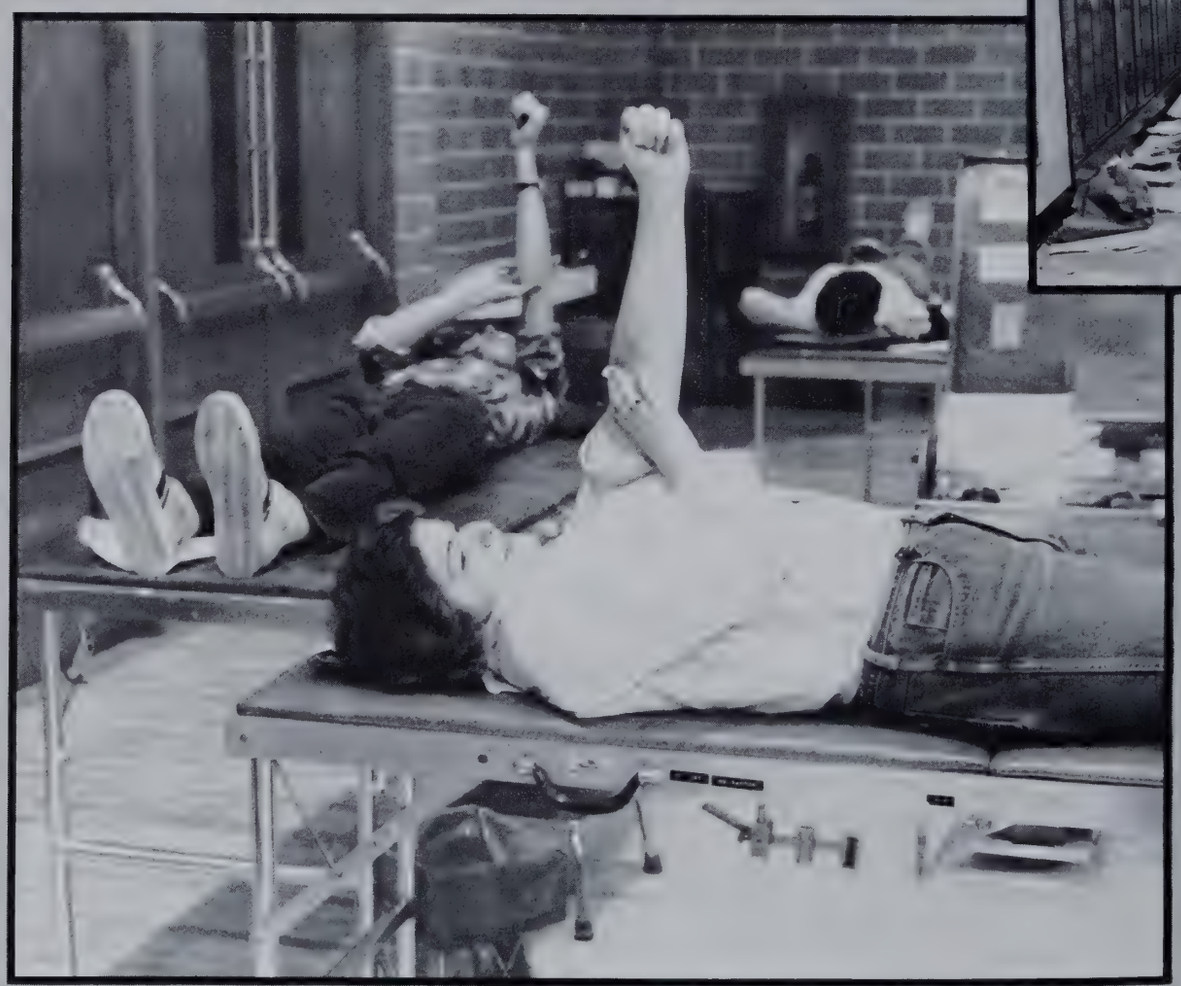
LIVE IT UP!

The Red Cross Bloodmobile visited DHS in April. Below, Liz Milliner seems satisfied that her donation may help save someone's life.



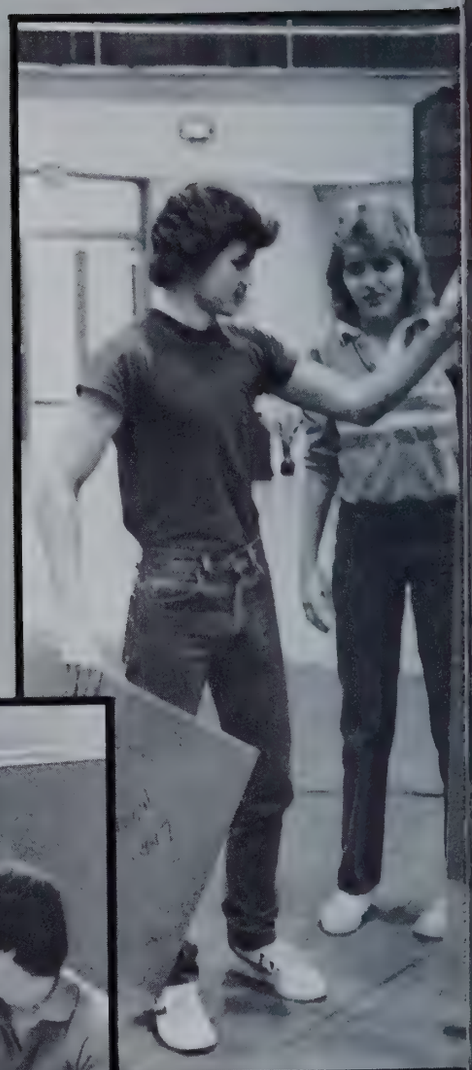
Practice makes perfect, so the seniors practice sitting in the gym so they'll know how to do it on the following Sunday when it's time to graduate.

All that extra work for the custodians! It is easy to see that the seniors have been "Living It Up" while cleaning out their lockers.

As the 1984 school year came to a close, we took a journey back through our finest memories . . . all the memories we recalled and quite a few more to add — like the prom, which will never be forgotten; the bloodmobile, which was a success thanks to both students and teachers; and the Fine Arts Show. All of the participants in sports helped the Barons gain the NEIAC All-Sports Title for the second year in a row.

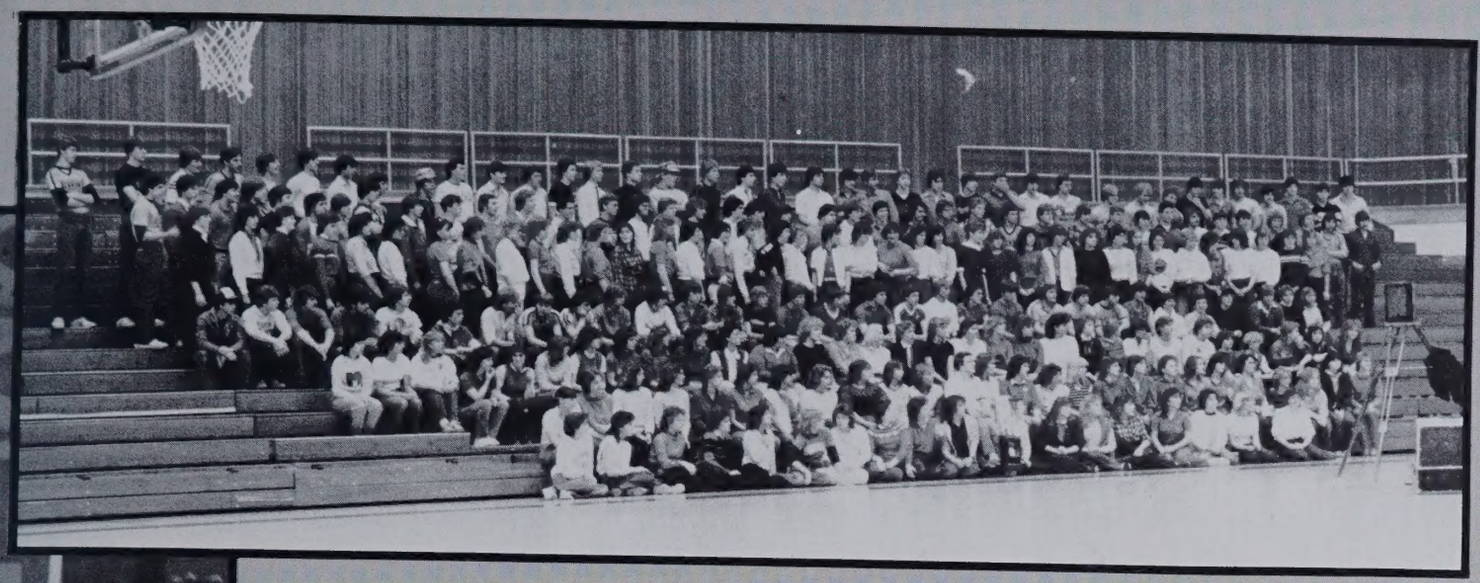
For seniors, it was the last time to rule the school but allowing the juniors to become "number one" during senior week. Sophomores became used to the unknown and very big building and were looking forward to gaining a little authority over the upcoming sophomores and freshmen.

As we recalled the times of the 1983-1984 school year, we realized that nobody "LIVES IT UP" better than the Barons.

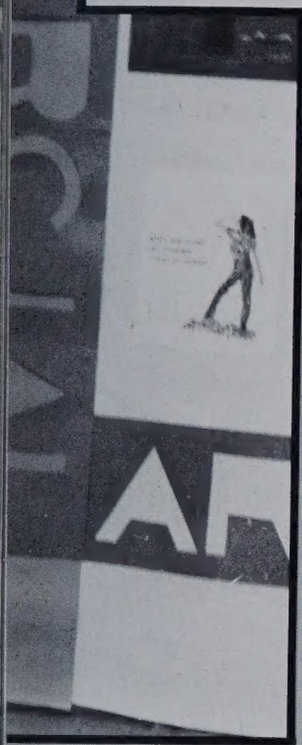


Stacey Howell watches and gives some advice as Vince Armitage adjusts a display board for May's Fine Arts Show.

Barons seldom miss a chance to have a party. Roger Hughes displays the shirt his computer class gave him just before he left DHS to join the ranks of college coaching.



Does this group look as if it could "Live It Up"? The Class of '84 smiles and says "Cheese" as it has its collective picture taken.



LIVE IT UP!
